A TERRIBLE STORY.

Particulars of the Wreck of the Ship Atlanta.

VESSEL WAS DRIVEN ASHORE

Graphic Account of the Disaster as Given by George Frazier Who Was One of the Three Survivors.

TWENTY-THREE LIVES WERE LOST

Yaquina Ore, Nov. 21.—Additional particulars of the wreck of the British ship Atlanta, Capt, Charles McBride from Tacoma to Capetown, Thursday morning, five miles south of Alssead were brought here.

Twenty three lives were lost, including all the officers of the ship, and only three sailors survived to tell the terrible story of the wreck The survivors are: Francis McMahon a native of Belfast, Ireland, aged 18; John Weber, Tarrytown, N. Y.; George Fraser, Philadelphia.

Wednesday morning the ship stood off on the star board tack, the course being southeast 12 east until Wednesday night until about 12 o'clock. She kept backing off, steering southeast and running under full sail, when suddenly the lookout sang out "breakers ahead!"

Almost at the same time the ship struck with a tremendous crash She arose again on the heavy ground swell, lurched forward, struck again, was carried further by the seas, struck a third time and commenced settling at once. The crew had taken to the rigging, most of them to the mizzenmast. Within half an hour after striking, the hull broke in two. The mainmast fell, and this started the mizzenmast, in which nearly all the crew had taken refuge At this moment George Fraser, a sailor plunged overboard, preferring to take his chances at swimming than to be carried overboard by the tottering mizzenmast. He succeeded in catching hold of the main hatch, and held on for a few minutes when he was told that the port lifeboat was near him. Fraser swam to the boat after a desperate struggle, and succeeded in climbing into it, his shipmates in the rigging giving him three cheers. After helping McMahon and Weber into the boat, they soon drifted on shore.

Fraser in telling the story of the wreck said: "The first thing I knew the first mate called me and said the ship was on the beach. The other men came to the door and sang out, "All hand lay aft. we are going to wear ship. The second mate shouted 'Clear away the boats; that's our only chance!' The second mate and myself jumped upon the boat skids to clear away the port bow, I shoutout for some one to give me a hand to the mizzen rigging. As soon as I reached the poop, I was swept off my feet, but grasped a stanchion when the sea spent its force. When the sea cleared off the poop I ran for the mizzed rigging crawled across the cross jack yard and got into the port rigging, when the ship broke in two. Shortly after that the mainmast went by the board and it started the mizzenmast. I then took to the water and swam to the main hatch, which floated close to the ship. I stayed on the hatch about twenty minutes. Another fellow swam to the hatch, but I told him to get off the hatch and look for one of his own. He would not do it so I got off myself, as it would not hold two up. There was another hatch nearby and I swam to it but the breakers washed me off. The men in the rigging were watching me and told me the boat was coming. I swam to the boat and got one arm over the gunwale the crew in the rigging cheering me all the time. I crawled into the boat which was full of water, and looking around, saw Weber on the other side. McMahon was among the wreckage and we hauled him into the boat. We had no oars, but soon drifted off the wreck, and the breakers started us ashore. I looked toward the wreck to see if I could see anybody, but only one man was visible on the port aft davit. We kept the boat's head to sea and were soon washed ashore."

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Meekness makes might.

The right needs no apology.

To live love, is better than to love life.

Gratitude is the whetstone of obedience.

The faithful servant watches by working.

Love makes fewer mistakes than learning.

Blood money cannot hush an accusing conscience.

Knowing how to think aids in knowing what to think.

Some people are willing to live up to their light as long as their eyes are bandaged.

It is our little deeds of love that are large, and our great deeds of self that are little.

The difficulties in the path of duty disappear when we go forward as though they were not there.

Some men lay the loadstone of lust alongside the compass of conscience, and then talk about its' being a good guide.—Ram's Horn.

Army and Navy.

The mules sent from the United States to Cuba seem to thrive well there, as only twenty have died out of the 1,200 sent. Yet none of the mules drank boiled water or slept on platforms lifted above the ground or observed any of the rules of sanitary science.

Dreams of wealth are the natural consequences of taking prizes, and a Poughkeepsie dispatch says that a claim has been filed with the sixth auditor of the treasury by James H. Kelley, a first class fireman on the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul, for $7,000 prize money, which he contends is due him from the government. He says that the sum of $700,000 prize money is due the crew of the St. Paul for the capture of the British ship Restormel, with coal for Cervera's squadron, and the disabling of the Spanish torpedo boat Terror at San Juan, Porto Rico. Kelley ought to be employed as figurer-in-chief by all claimants suggests the Army and Navy Journal.

Miss Helen Gould has received a twelve-inch projectile from the navy department. It was sent to Lyndhurst, her country place, south of Tarrytown, N. Y., as a souvenir of the war with Spain. It weighed 800 pounds and worried the baggagemen at the railroad station at Tarrytown in getting it off the train and on the platform of the station.

Since the year of 1895—that is to say within the last four years—German yards have delivered no less than twenty four men of war for foreign navies—namely, three ironclads, ten torpedo-boat destroyers and eleven torpedo boats, and, besides this, there are now in hand 22 other vessels—namely, three other large men of war, ten torpedo-boat destroyers and eight torpedo boats.

England's Good Wishes.

The brotherly feeling shown by Great Britain for America is not entirely an outgrowth of our war with Spain, but was most touchingly expressed a score of years ago by the English novelist, W. Clark Russel, in "The Wreck of the Grosvenor," where, in chapter 27, in telling his story in the first person, he gives a most vivid description of the slow sinking of the ship he was in and the anxiety with which he looked for a rescuing sail.

He describes the joy on sighting an approaching bark, and after telling how, "she brought her bows astern of us," he writes:

"At the same moment she hoisted Russian colors. I was bitterly disappointed when I saw the flag. I should have been equally disappointed by the sight of any other foreign flag unless it were the stars and stripes, which floats over brave hearts and is a signal to Englishmen as full of welcome and promise, almost, as their lown loved bit of bunting."

MORE INVESTIGATION

Governor-Elect Roosevelt Was a Witness.

HE TOOK CHARGE OF A SHIP

With His Men He Decided to Get There and the Result Was That They Succeeded in Their Efforts.

HE MAKES SOME SUGGESTIONS

New York, November 23.—Before the war investigating commission yesterday Rev. Henry B. Bryan, of the Garden City cathedral, spoke of the manner in which the soldiers dying in hospitals were buried. Mr. Bryan went to Camp Wikoff on September 2.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was among the afternoon witnesses. He told of the equipment and mustering in of the Rough Riders.

"When we reached Tampa," Colonel Roosevelt said, "there was a condition of utter confusion. We were dumped outside, a mile away from our camp. No one knew where the camp was. There was no one to tell us where to go or what to do. After waiting twenty-four hours I took the law into my own hands and bought food for the men and horses. Later, when we found our camp, we were all right."

His own regiment was assigned to the transport Yucatan. Incidentally he had heard that the Second infantry and the Seventy-first New York volunteers were also assigned to the Yucatan. As soon as he heard that he hurried on the Rough Riders and took possession of the ship and held it against the other regiments. His men had decided to get to Cuba and they got there.

Replying to other questions, Colonel Roosevelt said the food was ample, and the exception of the canned roast beef, good. The beef was very bad.

Colonel Roosevelt told in detail of the march of his regiment to its first camping place.

"After supper," he continued, "Lieutenant Colonel Wood told us that we were to start next morning to take the Spaniards. The next morning's march was a hard one, especially for the men. There were no opportunities for flankers. It was so hot that about 100 men dropped out for a rest and when the first Spanish outpost was discovered Colonel Wood ordered silence and it was sent to the right to deploy with the right wing.

"When the Spaniards began firing I did not know what was up. It was my first experience. They were using smokeless powder and I could not see where they were. When I located the Spaniards with my glasses I did not know what to do, but I knew it was a good rule if in doubt to go ahead, and so went ahead."

Colonel Roosevelt then told how the regiment camped out for the night.

Asked about the rations he said: "We had the regulation rations of salt pork, hardtack, coffee and sugar, but the men wanted vegetables and I wanted to get some for them. The department refused to sell me beans and tomatoes unless I could certify that they were for officers' consumption. I stretched my conscience as far as I could, and then I boarded a transport and purchased about 500 pounds of beans."

"The ammunition supply was excellent. The food was insufficient."

Colonel Roosevelt said other regiments at the front suffered from lack of supplies. One man of the First Illinois regiment visited the Rough Riders' camp and offered $7 for several hardtacks. Two hundred men of the regiment came into the Rough Riders' camp and ate the broken hardtack.

MAY BE AMENDED.

The Law Governing the Soldiers Orphans' Schools.

Since the war with Spain many men of this state have left their homes and loving wives and children while they served in the United States volunteer army. Many changes have taken place in their lives, especially in several, which have been made known and may lead to the amendment of the act of general assembly which governs the state soldiers' orphans' schools.

Wives have died, leaving behind several small children, who with their father in the army, have no person to look after them. One of these cases recently came to the notice of the secretary of the soldiers' orphans' school commission, by a private soldier of the Twelfth Pennsylvania regiment, who resides at Williamsport. His wife died while he was at Chickamauga, leaving two children, a girl of seven and a boy of six. The soldier was in great distress and had no support for them. Chief Clerk John D. Patterson received a letter from him which was endorsed by Colonel Coryell, asking the commission to take the children into one of the industrial schools for soldiers' orphans.

Chief Clerk Patterson states that under the act of assembly only children of the soldiers who served in the civil war can be admitted to these schools and to have the children of the soldiers of the Hispano-American war taken into the schools, an amendment must be made to the act of the assembly governing the schools.

This should be done and in all probability will be at the next session of the legislature as the fact will be made known as within the next ten years, Clerk Patterson says, the schools will be closed as all old soldiers' children will be grown up by that time.

Manners in the Field.

There are some occult influence which frequently causes well-bred and well-intended people to forget their breeding and their manners directly they have a gun in hand and find themselves in another person's land looking for game. Yet there is surely nothing inherent in a taste for field sports which involves such disregard of others. On the contrary, as is demonstrated by shining examples in great multitude, there are sportsmen who show themselves in the field as at home and everywhere thoughtful of their fellow men, and whose pleasant fellowship is sought not only by the companion with whom they go shooting, but by the residents among whom they shoot, and to whose courtesy they are indebted for their opportunities of sport. Every shooter who thus treats a landowner as he would be treated in turn by him will have no difficulty in finding in this country today an abundance of good shooting. Even if he shall at first be warned of and debarred by trespass notices, he has to thank for this, in all probability, the gunners who have preceded him, and who have made their invasion of the fields so intolerable that they have put a brand and stigma upon all of the craft. But even the most hostile and bitter misanthrope of a northern and western farmer or southern plantation owner will gradually relent and make himself agreeable if the sportsman who covets his game will but persevere in the pursuit of it according to the Golden Rule.—From Forest and Stream.

Reception to Ensign Curtin and Bride.

Tuesday evening the residence of Pennsylvania's old war governor, the late Andrew Curtin, was a scene of a brilliant social event. The occasion was a reception tendered by Mrs. Catherine Curtin to her nephew Ensign Roland I. Curtin and bride, formerly Miss May Randolph Hammersly, of New York City. The elite of the city were present and a most cordial greeting was tendered the young couple.

Ensign Curtin was commander of the Wasp and as such will go down in history as the man who demanded and received the surrender of Ponce by telephone.

—At a recent meeting of a London burial board, says a correspondent, it was suggested by a member that in acknowledgment of the zealous services of the superintendent of the cemetery, who was described as being so hard-worked that he had not a minute to himself, he should be granted an extra honorarium. "Better," said another, "give him a sum of money, as, if he is so hard-worked, what time will he have to play a honorarium."

SPAIN TACKLES IT!

Will She Refuse to Cede the Philippines?

WILL THE PROPOSITION GO

This News Comes by Way of Paris and at the Same Time It is Received in the Capital of the Country.

THERE EVERYTHING IS SERENE

Paris, Nov. 23.—The Spanish peace commissioners Monday telegraphed to Madrid the substance of the United States memorandum presented Monday and late in the evening they were discussing it among themselves. As late as 1 o'clock yesterday morning a Spanish commissioner affirmed that he and his colleagues did not know what to do regarding the American offer. There is a difference of opinion among unofficial people near the commissions, but the prediction is made that Spain will decline the American offer of money; that she will refuse to cede the Philippines and will say to the United States:

"You may take the archipelago because you have the power to do so. As you advance we will retire, protesting against greedy aggression. We will faithfully carry out our protocol pledge and leave Cuba and Porto Rico in your hands. You came here to engage in a discussion under the terms of the protocol, but you evidently meant when drawing up that document to provide a conference in which, though we differ, man to man, you proposed to announce at the proper time what you will do, whether we agree to it or object Such an attitude robs the conference of a negotiative character and sets up the United States as a dominant power whose first purpose is to listen, but whose ultimate determination is to do its own will."

It was said Monday that Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish commission, at the conference Monday remarked after having heard the American offer, that if the vital portion had been read the Spaniards could have answered it instantly, but as the memorandum was very long they would defer their answer until Wednesday, adding that in would be easily possible to make it within forty-eight hours.

On the other hand, it is said the Spaniards cannot justify themselves before their people and others by their throwing away $20,000,000, added to the inevitable loss of the Philippine islands.

The Gaulois yesterday said:

"The commissions being divided into an equal number of voices on the subject of the cession or retention of the archipelago, a recouse to arbitration is absolutely necessary and legal. The Americans, nevertheless, refuse to do so and attribute to themselves sovereignty over the Philippines without the consent of the conference. They therefore themselves tear up the protocol they had imposed upon the vanquished and, to keep up appearances and soften in the eyes of the world violence of their proceedings, they offer the absurd compensation of $20,000,000.

Apropos of Thanksgiving.

The old-fashioned Thanksgiving family dinner is becoming a thing of the past.

In but one part of our country does it still hold its own. That is in New England where Thanksgiving is the festival paremience of the entire year.

The religious significance of the day is perhaps no more remembered than in the Middle States, but as a family festival it is the red letter day of the 365.

South of Mason and Dixon's line Thanksgiving is observed by very few, and those few are Northerners who have made the South their home.

We of the middle States still keep our Thanksgiving feast, but not as it was kept 30 years ago.

Those who remember times long past assert that then the last Thursday in November was much colder than it is now, and that the home was made more cosy by the thought of the snow and ice without, and the sleighbells jingled merrily through the city streets and along the country roads.

Then the children and the children's children flocked from the different cities and towns toward which they had flitted from the parent nest, and met to return thanks in the old home.

For days before the festival the housemother was busy preparing dainties under which the table should literally groan; and it was a marvel that the maxim, "Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die," was not fulfilled to the dismal end by the partakers of those repasts.

THANKSGIVIN' TIME'S A-COMIN'.

Thanksgivin' time's a-comin'—I kin hear the gobble-gobble
Of the turkeys in the barnyard on the farm where I was born,
I kin see the Shanghai rooster walkin' sort of wibble-wobble,
Makin' b'lieve he's feelin' sick an' off his feed on yaller corn.

An' they're fixin' in the kitchen fer a good ole fashioned dinner,
Choppin' mince meat by the bushel that is good fer hungry eyes,
Seedin' raisins fer plum puddin' fit to save the vilest sinner
If he ever had a mother an' she made Thanksgivin' pies.

Ah, the mother, she's a smilin', standin in the doorway, lookin'
Down toward the railroad station when she hears the engine toot,
Fer her boy is a-comin' and the pies most burn a cookin'
While her dear ole heart's a thumpin' for this worthless ole galoot.

Doesn't 'pear to matter nohow thet I'm bald an' gittin' gouty,
Doesn't seem to make no dif'rence that I smoke and cuss a bit,
She's the same ole lovin' mother, never cross an' never grouty,
An' there'll be no more Thanksgivin's, boys, when mother hez to quit.

GOLDEN-ROD.

Gold on the meadow-land, gold on the hills,
And gold on the undulate leaf,
Where the sunlight its shimmering crimson spills
On the breast of the beautiful sea!
And the clear, crisp air is ripe and sweet
With the autumn's rare perfume,
And the sound of the sea makes music for me
Where the golden-rod is in bloom.

Golden-rod blazing on crag and crest
Where the surf booms, down the bay;
In a kirtle of yellow the land is drest
This gorgeous autumn day.
And the pamper'd flower uprears its head
In a challenge to the sun
To discover whose gold shall first shine cold
To the sight, e'er the day is done!

Evadne is walking abroad today,
While the sun is in the skies;
There's an Eden of bliss in her smile, I say,
And a dream in her glorious eyes;
And the golden-rod droops down its head
In sullenness of despair;
For its splendor that flamed is outshone and shamed
By the gold of Evadne's hair!

Hold Robbers.

An attempt to rob two Roman Catholic priests, at Centralia, was made Saturday night by two ex-members of the Mollie Maguire gang. Anthony Nash, of Centralia, and James Harvey, of Mount Carmel, entered the house where the priests live about midnight, in quest of $5,000 which Rev. Father T. W. Hayes had borrowed a few days ago for church purposes, and which was supposed to be in the house at the time, but which had been deposited in the bank at Ashland that morning. After ransacking the lower part of the house, and obtaining $76 belonging to the housekeeper, and a gold watch of Father McGrath's, the men went to the room of Father Hayes, and demanded that he open the safe, threatening to "blow his head off." Upon his refusal to accede to the demand, one of the men went to the room of aged Father McGrath and repeated the insolent request. Before he could make reply, the mask slipped from the villain's face. His identity having been revealed, the man fled, accompanied by his pal. Both were arrested and brought to jail at Bloomsburg, and will be tried at the December term of court.

A special from Washington says ex-President Benjamin Harrison has been retained by Venezuela to represent that government before the arbitration commission that sits in Paris within a short time to settle the dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela over boundary lines. General Harrison is said to have received a retainer fee of $100,000.

Good Haul.

The total number of guns captured from the Spaniards at Santiago, to be shipped north, is 131, varying from 1½ inches up to 8½ inches in calibre. There are 86 6-inch bronze pieces, three steel guns and 42 cast iron guns. There are also 22,000 Mauser rifles and 10,000,000 cartridges.

A doctor down in Delaware is on the road to sure fame and honor. He prescribed kissing as a sure cure for indigestion, and some chronic dyspeptics there will form a society to advance the idea. One man who has suffered with the trouble twenty years, and tried hot water, pills of all sorts, and message, claims to have been cured by regularly kissing a pretty girl. He says it excites the nerves of the mouth and thus aids digestion. It will require no urging to induce all sufferers from the disease mentioned to take the medicine, but we advise the girls—the pretty one especially—to make hay while the sun shines, financially speaking.

Robberies at Austin.

Early Tuesday morning burglars broke the large French plate glass in the window of W. S. Wanner's jewelery store at Austin, Potter co., and stole from the store a number of revolvers. They also visited the Hotel Enterprise and took cigars, eight dollars in cash and a check for $7.50. They next went to Watkins' Racket store and entered the apartment of Wills Watkins and took that gentleman's pantaloons, coat and vest; a watch and about one dollar in cash. The clothing was found a short distance from the store.

Thanksgiving Dance.

The Senior class of the Pennsylvania State College will hold their regular Thanksgiving dance in the armory at the College, on Friday evening, Nov. 25th. The class of '99 has spared no efforts to make this dance one of the best ever held at Thanksgiving and it is to be a success in every way. The celebrated Stoppe and Fisk orchestra, of Williamsport, has been engaged for the evening and, weather permitting a very pleasant time will be had.

A Fast Runner.

A gentleman calling at a hotel left his umbrella in the stand in the hall with the following inscription attached to it: "This umbrella belongs to a man who can strike a blow of 250 pound weight. I shall be back in ten minutes." On returning to seek his property he found in its place a card thus inscribed: "This card has been left by a man who can run twelve miles an hour. I shall not come back."

An Odd Loking Bird.

A few days ago Joseph Feerar, of Jersey Shore, shot a large brown bittern. The odd looking bird has legs that are 11¾ inches long, neck 22½ inches, beak 3½ inches. From tip to tip of wing it measured four feet and two inches. It has toes like a chicken, only much longer. The largest toe on each foot measures four inches.

DEPRECATE DELAY!

Madrid Newspapers and the Paris Conference.

A Berlin Correspondent Thinks an Alliance Is Altogether Likely to Have Taken Place—Germany's Position.

MUCH PRAISE FOR CHAMBERLAIN

MADRID, November 18.—Almost all the papers deprecate the dilatory proceeding at Paris, expressing their belief that the United States will decline arbitration and urging the government to yield quickly, since it is impossible for Spain to renew the struggle or to expect European assistance, and furthermore because it would be better to cease wasting money and to concentrate attention upon Spain's domestic affairs and the restoration of her finances.

LONDON, November 18.—All the special dispatches to the London papers and more from Paris express the belief that the Spanish commissioners will finally yield, though under protest, to the American demands.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, secretary of state for war, speaking at Plymouth this evening on general politics referred to his gratification over the Anglo-American friendship.

In the course of the speech he sketched the proposed large scheme of improving the home defenses by providing new type of guns, which would require a smaller number. He said he felt sure that when the government had completed its scheme the country would be prepared for the heavy sacrifices it would entail.

The Berlin correspondent of the Times says: "The German attempts to deny the significance of the Anglo-American friendship are now being abandoned. There are certain imponderabilia,' to use an expression of Bismarck's, which the citizens of both countries, residing abroad, have already begun to appreciate, as the first proofs of the united influence of the two powers in the affairs of the world."

The Times editorially this morning hails Joseph Chamberlain as the "apostle of better understandings with the United States and Germany," adding that it rejoices that in view of the part the United States are likely to play in the far east, a cause of possible irritation has been removed by Emperor William's change of plans as to his homeward journey.

With regard to Anglo-American co-operation in the far east, the Times says: "Its effectiveness will largely depend upon our ability to do our share of the work and to protect our own interests without calling upon our friends."

ST. JOHNS, N. F., November 18.—Mr. Morine, former minister of finance, who was the agent of the colony before the royal commission on the French treaty shore question, said yesterday in the course of an interview that he regarded the denunciation of France by the secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, in his recent speech at Manchester, as the first result of the report made by the royal commissioners to Mr. Chamberlain since their arrival in England.

Death of Levi Otto.

We regret to chronicle the breavement of our townsman Hamilton Otto, in the death of his father, which occured at Johnstown, last Thursday Nov. 17 1898.

Levi Otto was born at Johnstown, July 2, 1829, and died in that city, Nov. 17, 1898, aged 69 years 4 months and 17 days. He leaves children as follows: Mrs. Geo. Hoover and Mrs. James Bechley, of Bradford Co. Mrs. Geo. McKensey and Austin Otto, of Loraine, Ohio; Lottie and Redrick of Pittsburg; Mrs. Earnest Scheffer of New York, Frank of Johnstown, and Hamilton Otto, of Bellefonte.

The funeral took place at Johnstown Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. On account of sickness Mr. Hamilton Otto was unable to attend. We tender our friend our heartfelt sympathy in this his hour of sad affliction.

Why.?

Why isn't the drum solo a roll of music?

Why isn't chasing a colored man a race after dark?

Why should a bank account be overdrawn when frequently checked?

Why should a properly punctuated story be pointless?

Why isn't the crash department the noisiest place in a dry goods store?

Why don't some manufacturer introduce a sarsaparilla for that bicycle tire?

Why isn't it a case of love at second sight when a man marries a clairvoyant?

Why doesn't the proprietor of a seashore hotel extract gold from sea water?

Why isn't the summer resort a place for resorting left-over maids and bachelors?

Why is it that the average man is seldom willing to do the things he is constantly telling others they should do?

Maria Teresa Condemned.

WASHINGTON, Nov., 18.—The armored cruiser Maria Teresa has been abandoned by this time, and lies a wreck off the coast of Cat island. The department has wired Captain McCalla as follows:

"If you are satisfied, after consultation with the officers named, Teresa cannot be saved, you are authorized to abondon the wreck. As to any other matters, exercise your own judgement. Notify the British authorities. When you have done all you can, return to Norfolk."

The captain was subsequently directed to bring the wrecking tug Potomac to Norfolk with him when he came, instead of returning her to Santiago.

Some Things to Learn.

Learn to laugh, not giggle; a hearty laugh is better than medicine, says an exchange. A well told story is as good as a sunbeam in the sick room. Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. Learn to stop croaking about your neighbors; they are just as good as you are. If you cannot see any good in the town you live in, pull out and leave, and the people will thank you for it. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. A good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the pessimist is not wanted. He is a nuisance.

CLEVELAND, O., November 18.—Senator Hanna was asked today by the Associated Press correspondent if he desired to make any statement in regard to the recent interview which had been given to the public as coming from him. He replied that he had not seen the Associated Press interview until yesterday, but had seen copies of remarks upon it which were a cause of wonderment to him.

"The article named seems to have been taken from a chat I had with a reporter of a local paper who asked my opinion on the results of the recent elections, then drifted into a questioning as to the outcome of the war tax, etc., and not expecting to be quoted, we talked about the possibilities of various sources of revenue. As my meaning was evidently misunderstood in reference to the question under discussion and I was misquoted, I now state that I consider the Dingley bill the most scientific and best adjusted tariff bill ever enacted; that I would be the last person to disturb its operations; that I believe it will bring a larger revenue to the country than was claimed for it, and will remain in force for many years and be changed only by the Republican party when the requirements of the country demand it."

"As to the war tax, I believe that some features of it will remain as a means of revenue to provide for natural increased expenses of the government and contingencies. I did state and now repeat that owing to the benefits of the protective tariff our manufacturing industries have reached the point where for the first time in the history of the country our exports of manufactured goods have exceeded our imports. We have always claimed this would be the outcome of the protective policy, at the same time maintaining our standard of wages. This means a reduction of revenue from imports and unless made good from increased volume of business, it must be supplied from other sources, and I suggested tea and coffee, which can be made in my opinion, a source of revenue (when required) without any great hardship to consumers. I do not care to enter into any newspaper discussion and perhaps I did not make my meaning clear to my friend, the reporter. I certainly was not dictating a public interview and would not say this much only to correct what seems to have been a misunderstanding. I am a protectionist in principle and have grown stronger in the belief from object lessons which are multiplying every year."

What Shall We Do.

A serious and dangerous disease prevails in this country, dangerous because so deceptive. It comes on so slowly yet surely that it is often firmly seated before we are aware of it.

The name of this disease which may be divided into three distinct stages is, First, Kidney trouble, indicated by pain in the back, rheumatism, lumbago, frequent desire to urinate, often with a burning sensation, the flow of urine being copious or scant with strong odor.

If allowed to advance, this reaches the Second stage, or bladder trouble, with heavy pain in the abdomen low down between the naval and the water passage, increasing desire to urinate, with scalding sensation in passing, small quantities being passed with difficulty, sometimes necessary to draw it with instruments. If uric acid or gravel has formed, it will prove dangerous if neglected.

The Third stage is Bright's disease.

There is comfort in knowing that Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist, has discovered a Remedy famous for its marvelous cures of the most distressing cases and known as Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root.

It is sold by all druggists.

As a proof of the wonderful virtues of this great discovery, Swamp-Root, a sample bottle and book of valuable information will be sent absolutely free by mail on application to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghampton, N. Y. When writing kindly mention that you read this liberal offer in the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN.

OUR lately disgruntled Republican brethren ought to be glad by this time that a free trade, free coinage Governor was not elected in Pennsylvania and that the State is not to be misrepresented and humiliated by a Democrat in the United State Senate.

The Giant Despair.

One of the most horrible things about the nervous diseases to which women are peculiarly subject is the sense of overwhelming despair which they bring upon the mind. A woman's mental condition is directly and powerfully affected by any ailment of the delicate, special organs of her sex. Such a difficulty not only racks her body with pain and suffering but burdens her with mental anguish which words can hardly describe.

Thousands of women have had a similar experience to that of Mrs. Eurath A. Williams, of Westport, Oldham Co., Ky., in which the use of Dr. Pierce's wonderful "Favorite Prescription," by imparting health and strength to the feminine organism, has not only restored complete vigor and capacity to the bodily powers but has also given renewed brightness and buoyancy of spirit.

"I suffered for over a year," says Mrs. Williams, "with indigestion and nervous prostration. I was unable to eat or sleep. I tried several physicians, but they only helped me for a short time. A friend advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets.' I commenced taking the medicines last May. Took three bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' three of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and three vials of the 'Pellets,' and am now feeling better than I have for two years. Have a good appetite, sleep well, and do not suffer from indigestion or nervousness. I have gained seven and a half pounds since taking these medicines. I have recommended Dr. Pierce's medicine to several ladies, one of whom is now taking it and is being greatly benefited."

Gov. Hastings Appoints Delegates

HARRISBURG, Nov., 18.—Governor Hastings appointed these delegates yesterday to the national pure food and drug congress to be held in Washington January 18 20: Leonard Rhone Centre Hall; W. B. Powell, Shadeland; Hon. James Sexton, Springhouse; Louis Emanuel, Pittsburg; F. A. Boericke, Philadelphia; Francis B. Reeves, Philadelphia; Thomas Martindale, Philadelphia; Sylvester S. Martin, Pittsburg; William R. Warner, Philadelphia; Thos. J. Edge, Harrisburg; Prof. John Hamilton, Harrisburg; Major Levi Wells, Harrisburg; Dr. G. G. Groff, Lewisburg; Dr. Charles T. George Harrisburg.

See a lot of young girls in another column with their garments tucked up treading grapes in a Quinto village of Portugal during the wine making season. The practice is kept up to this day. Speer of New Jersey, however, uses rubber rollers and makes the most superior wines of the world.

A Tough Gang.

Frank Boney, who drives a bakery wagon between Punxsutawney and Horatio, was held up near that place at 1.00 Wednesday by a band of negroes, who robbed him of four dollars and his watch and then cruelly beat him. The negroes came from Unity, Pa., to work on the tunnel, and since their arrival have killed one of their own number and committed some fifteen open daylight robberies.

Pill Age.

Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills, 10 cents a vial, are planned after the most modern in medical science. They are as great an improvement over the 50 years old strong dose formulas as a bicycle is over an ox cart in travel. They never gripe and they never fail—40 doses 10 cents.—59

Big Store Robbed Near Milton.

Burglars entered the general merchandise store of J. S. Montgomery & Co., at Pottsgrove, near Milton Wednesday night and stole from the unlocked safe over $2,000 worth of mortgages and certificates, and nearly $200 in cash. A member of the firm who slept in a room adjoining the store was not awakened. The front door of the store was found left standing open and the safe rifled and none of the big lot of merchandise disturbed.

NOBODY expects any financial legislation at the coming session. But to permit the next congress to expire without decisive action would be an unpardonable blunder.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Interesting Program Prepared for Centre County Teachers.

The fifty-second annual session of the Centre County teachers' institute will meet in the Court house, Bellefonte, Monday, December 19th, and continue in session until Friday December 23rd. All indications point to a successful gathering. The instructors will be Hon. John Q. Stewart, deputy state superintendent; Dr. C. C. Miller, ex-state superintendent of Ohio; Miss Lizzie Partridge, author of "Quincy Methods," Landsdown, Pa.; Dr. A. T. Smith, professor of pedagogy, West Chester, Pa.; Prof. W. W. Deatrick, professor of physchology, Kurtztown, Pa.; Prof. P. H. Meyer, musical director, Boalsburg.

The evening entertainments will be as follows; Tuesday evening, lecture, "Wit and Humor", by Wallace Bruce, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wednesday evening, lecture, "Character Building," by Prof. John DeMotte, A. M., M. D., Ph. D., of Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Thursday evening, lecture, "The Last Days of the Confederacy," by Gen. John B. Gordon, ex-United States Senator from Georgia. The citizens of Bellefonte and vicinity can buy a course ticket for $1.25. Single admission 50 cents

These entertainments are all first class and deserve the hearty support of our people. Reserved seats will be placed on sale on Monday morning December 19th. The school directors are entitled to a free admission to all the evening entertainments except the lecture by General Gorden.

The first hour of the morning session will be given to the teachers for the purpose of discussing questions relating to school work. The following named will read papers at this session: L. W. Musser, W. H. Ott, Mary Warde, W. F. Leathers, Bella Rankin, G. W. Andrews, A. R. Rutt, Anna Johnson, H. M. Hosterman, Rufus T. Strohm, Helen Bartholomew, J. C. Morris, J. F. Harrison, D. O. Etters, T. M. Barnhart, Bessie Dorworth, Jennie Morrison, J. Frank McCormick, W. P. Hosterman and D. M. Wolfe. Each topic is open for general discussion.

Supt. Gramley will soon send to every teacher in the county the annual pamphlet giving full information and instructions as to how the institute will be conducted.

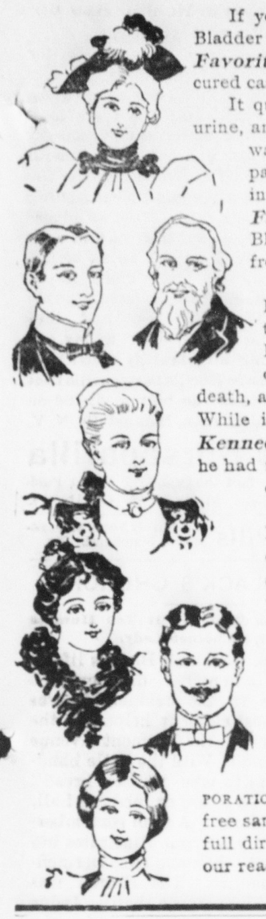
KING HUMBERT, of Italy, takes a very optimistic view of the Italian situation. Many of his subjects do not share his views. They believe Italy should cease posing as a great power. Then she could reduce her army and thus remove a portion of the heavy burden the people are carrying.

No Right To Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at F. Potts Green's Drug Store.

Why not be well?



If you are suffering with any disease of the Kidneys, Bladder or Urinary Organs, Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will make you well again. It has cured cases that bordered on the miraculous.

It quickly cures men and women of inability to hold urine, and they are not compelled to get up often and make water at night. It removes the scalding sensation in passing it, and, when taken according to directions, it invariably cures pains in the small of the back. Favorite Remedy not only cures Stone in the Bladder and Bright's Disease, but prevents them from developing.

One case is that of JOHN J. NEILL, of 2011 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa. In 1889 he began to suffer indescribable miseries from Stone in the Bladder. An eminent physician said a surgical operation was necessary. If unsuccessful it meant death, and Mr. Neill put off the evil day as long as possible. While in this frame of mind he heard of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and bought it. Before he had finished the third bottle the gravel was completely dissolved and his sufferings were at an end.

Favorite Remedy is a perfect Blood and Nerve medicine. It restores the liver to a healthy condition, cures the worst cases of Constipation, and all diseases peculiar to females. It cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Rheumatism. Your druggist will sell you a regular full-sized bottle for $1.00.

Sample Bottle Free.

Those sufferers who wish to try Favorite Remedy before buying should send their full postoffice address to the DR. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout, N. Y., and mention this paper. A free sample bottle will be sent them prepaid, together with full directions for using. This is a genuine offer, and all our readers can depend upon it.

THE PEACE AGREEMENT.

Important Session of Commissioners in Paris.

SPAIN HAS BEEN NOTIFIED

Two Alternatives Will Be Laid Before the Spanish Members and they Can Except Either One of Them.

IS PRACTICALLY AN ULTIMATION

PARIS, November 21.—The Spanish peace commissioners have been notified that the United States commissioners will be ready to treat with them today. Unless the Spaniards have an adequate reason for further delay the two commissions will join in the most important meeting thus far held. The American commissioners, in a written communication, will declare that the third article of the protocol, regarding the Philippines, is capable of only one fair construction, that no arbitration is needed to elucidate its terms, and that the United States cannot admit any other power to figure here purely as a lexicotogist. They will maintain that the two commissions are charged to determine whether Spain or the United States shall in the future own the Philippines. This will be accompanied by a clear declaration that the United States will possess the Philippines.

Following this declaration the American commissioners will lay before the Spaniards two alternatives:

First. To accept a sum of money from the United States and to cede and evacuate the Philippines.

Second. To lose the Philippines to the United States by conquest, with the possibility of other territorial losses to indemnify the United States for the added expense of conquest.

This communication may not be formally designated as an ultimatum, but it will lack naught of the conclusiveness indicated by that word. This will be so plain that the Spanish commissioners will scarcely haggle for more money on the first alternative nor cherish any doubt of American action under the second, should the first be declined.

No one here except the American commissioners knows how much will be tendered Spain as the cheapest and most humane way of settling the difficulty. She is exceedingly anxious to escape the Philippine debt and possibly the sum to be offered may be determined by an analysis of that debt, which consists of $40,000,000 in bonds, on which she realized $36,000,000. Of the latter amount she is believed to have expended some $10,000 or $11,000, in fighting the United States and a part in attempting to quell the Philippine insurrection.

A reasonable guess at the sum for tender would be $20,000,000 though it may fall below that.

THERE is no danger now that this republic will ever adopt the monetary standard of Mexico and South America.

Soldiers' Pets.

Among the various experts of an infantry regiment was one individual who had been a bee hunter. For some reason, which he declined to state, bees would never sting him. So one Sunday morning—at Centreville—in the presence of General Sherman, he captured a large old-fashioned beehive, like those we see in pictures. This was made of twisted straw, and was literally crammed with honeycomb. He bore the hive triumphantly on his head. "Let him go," said General Sherman, who had just issued an order against all marauding, "he has taken his punishment into his own hands!" And sure enough, the bees followed in angry swarm. But such was the magic of our bee tamer that the hive arrived in safety, and its contents were divided among the company, while not a sting bore out the prophecy of the general.

On the morning of the battle of South Mountain a bevy of quail were started by a regiment advancing in line. Many were caught, and several of the birds flew for refuge to the breast of the soldiers, hiding under their blouse. I trembled for their future, but so strong is the petting instinct in the young soldier that these quail were all tamed and kept as household pensioners in the rude huts which were to be our winter quarters. I was greatly shocked however, to learn that the cock birds were often pitted against each other in fight, following a well known (Chinese) custom, which prefers quail to game cocks.

One of the most extraordinary incidents that I remember of pet life in camp was the infatuation which our big California major inspired in the fluffy bosom of a young rooster (or cockerel, as they called him in Virginia). This ungainly bird, with waddling gait and ragged plumage, would follow the object of his devotion with an assiduity as it seems incredible. One night, an alarm of pickets having awakened the camp—we were in bivouac and General Early was in front of us—this young rooster was found sitting on the toe of the major's boot, head under his wing, fast asleep. It was the famous attack by Gordon's division at Cedar Creek, when Sheridan was "twenty miles away." All who were aware of the chaos and confusion of that day, which made Sheridan famous, can realize how that little cockerel was lost in the fray doubtless fell into the ruthless hands of the Confederates.

Which, as is well known, rival the world in excellence, for invalids and aged persons, and are made from the Oporto grape grown on vines imported from Portugal forty years ago. The soil of northern New Jersey, containing iron, is just suited for them. Mr. Speer, however, uses the improved way of mashing the grapes. He employs large rollers of rubber run by an engine which crush grapes at the rate of a barrel a minute. Speer's Wines, especially the Port and Burgundy now in market, are of very old vintage, and have no superior. Physicians far and near prescribe them for weakly females and aged persons. They are blood-making, adding iron to the system, and tend to prolong life. Extensively used at parties, weddings and general family use. ☞SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND GROCERS WHO DEAL IN WINES.

Work of Our Consul.

Andrew Loring writes in the London Mail of the good work done by American consuls in suggesting how American foreign trade may be extended. He calls them "ambassadors of commerce" and "commercial travelers for American producers." Referring to the work done for American pork by one American consul to England, he says: "He made an exhaustive inquiry into the subject, and finally sent a report to his country, telling the farmers what sort of pigs to breed from, how to feed them, when to kill them, how to cut them up and how to cure them. He has since, he tells me, had a heavy correspondence on the subject and expects to see some packing-house established which shall cure for the British market alone."

EDWARD T. TUTEN.

It is a wise pupil in geography who can tell how many islands Uncle Sam will own before the year is out.

If Spain desires to arbitrate the meaning of words it might be well to begin with "immediately evacuate."

The result in Nevada is still in doubt. When free silver wabbles in the sage brush the end is not far away.

The usual business boom followed Republican success in the elections, and it was even more marked than usual.

Mr. Bryan's opinion that the election was of no consequence is not shared by his fellow Nebraskan, Senator Allen.

Admiral Dewey paid $3.00 a word to cable his congratulations to Col. Roosevelt. The Democrats will have to give it up that the admiral is a Republican.

The Republican plurality in Ohio is 61,000 against 28,000 last year and 47,000 in 1896. It is scarcely worth while to talk further about free silver in that state.

The only American choice for an arbitrator in framing the treaty with Spain is Uncle Sam. He will decide all the difficult points with his usual promptness and fairness.

The release of a large number of political prisoners from Spanish dungeons in Cuba and Africa is one good result of the war and it is a signal triumph for humanity.

In the recent election Louisiana cast only 33,000 of its 265,000 votes. The decline of interest in the ballot is not a good political sign in the South or any other section.

Democratic solicitude in Congress about the army will now resume its usual form of fighting every proposition to enlarge the regular regiments or to add to their efficiency in any respect.

If Spain does not agree to the settlement of the peace question on the basis now proposed by our commissioners she will come out still worse in the end. She will have her peninsula intact, and some remaining colonies, if she submits to the present demands, but otherwise she will lose everything else before she is through with it. The first loss will be the Canary Islands, and then will follow the large and important slands of the Mediterranean Sea She had better be wise and take what she can and make the best of a bad bargain. More than this, she had better accept the inevitable quickly. The tone of the reports today shows that the administration is growing impatient and our members of the Peace Commission also. As Spain cannot fight again she may as well stop fooling with the Quaker guns of diplomacy.

Trimming Trees.

An expert gardener says: "If a tree is pruned immediately after the leaves fall or ripen, the shoots will be stronger in the succeeding season than they would if the operation had been delayed until spring. This arises from the fact that during the winter the tree still continues to absorb food by its roots, which is distributed over the branches; and as the principal flow of sap is always directed to the extreme points of shoots, the highest buds are the most fully developed. If, then the pruning is delayed until spring, this accumulation is cut and thrown away and to that extent the plant is weakened. When the size of the tree is the only object sought summer pruning should not be practiced."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.
Washington, Nov. 21-t, 1898.

President McKinley has called time on Spain, so to speak. He has set a time limit, within which the Spanish Peace Commissioners must either accept or reject finally and definitely, our demand for the Philippines. The exact length of this time limit is not known outside of the Cabinet and probably half a dozen others who enjoy the President's confidence, but there are good reasons for saying that it does not extend much, if any, beyond Dec. 1 The President was somewhat loth to adopt this peremptory policy, because he disliked to even appear to take advantage of our power to compel Spain to do what we pleased, but the quibbling evinced in the answers of the Spanish Commissioners, which they took a week or more in each case to prepare, convinced him that if they were not pulled up short, the negotiations were liable to go on indefinitely. He is simply tired of keeping this country on a war footing, and waiting for the Spaniards to agree to a formal treaty of peace.

Chairman Cannon, of the House Appropriation Committee, is determined that there shall be no delay in getting the regular appropriation bills reported to the House, at the coming session of Congress. The appropriation made the last session of Congress for the support of the army only extends to Dec. 31st, which makes it necessary that a new appropriation shall be made before Congress takes its Christmas recess. Upon information from the War department that its estimates would be ready by that time, Mr. Cannon has called a meeting of the members of the sub-committee on deficiencies, of which he is Chairman, for the 26st., and if the estimates are not delayed, this bill is likely to be ready to be reported as soon as Congress assembles. The sub-committee on the District of Columbia, will hold its first meeting Dec 1, and the present intention is to report the bill and pass it before the holidays. The House appropriation committee has a good record for hard and rapid work, under the guidance of Chairman Canon, but he hopes to establish a new record at the coming session of Congress.

The first pension of the Spanish war has been awarded to Private Jesse T. Gales, Second U. S. Artillery, who lost part of his upper lip and several teeth in the Cuban Campaign. Under present laws $17 a month was the most that could be allowed Gales, who is permanently disabled and disfigured. He will be given that sum, but its inadequacy is so manifest that it is likely a bill will be passed by Congress authorizing its increase.

Admiral Dewey has notified the Navy Department that he has contracted with a Hong Kong firm to raise three of the Spanish gun-boats, sunk in Manila Bay; that the work has already been partially accomplished, and that $500,000 will cover the entire cost of raising and putting them in complete repair. These boats are of a class that will be especially useful to the U. S., in Philippine waters. They are named respectively, Isla de Cuba, Isla de Luzon, and Don Juan de Austria. The first two are twin ships, 200 ft. long, 30 ft. beam with a draft of 11 ft. 6 inches, and the other is slightly larger, 210 ft. long, 32 ft. beam and draws 12 ft. 6 inches. They all have torpedo tubes as well as batteries. While it is hoped that the annoucement of satisfactory progress be the Canadian American Commission will shortly be followed by another that a treaty has been agreed upon, it is known that such a result can only be obtained by a material change in the position the Canadians have heretofore taken as to what should constitute commercial reciprocity—the real object of the Canadians in taking part in this commission. The U. S. has always been willing to have real commercial reciprocity with Canada, as with other nations, but strongly opposed to the jug-handle article which Canadians have heretofore sought. As soon as the Canadians are willing to give as much as they wish to take, a treaty can be arranged.

Hon. H. S. Foster, a member of the British Parliament, who is visiting Washington, quotes President McKinley as having said to him, during a conversation on the relations between the U. S. and Great Britain, that "the feelings of the two peoples would be fruitful for the cause of humanity and civilization," and that "the co-operation of the two countries did not depend upon paper treaties or written obligations, but upon a much deeper and more lasting basis."

Representative Dalzell, of Pa., who is a member of the House Committee on Rules, was asked whether there was likely to be any currency legislation at this session of Congress. He replied: "What is the need of it? We have an abundant revenue, and as long as that is the case, there is nothing the matter with our currency. I do not think there will be anything done on the subject at the coming session of Congress. There may be some currency legislation during the fifty-sixth Congress, but how broad and general it will be I cannot say.

I do not think the country would suffer if there were none. The people have no question about our money as long as our revenues are all right."

Secretary Long will in his annual report, recommend that Congress authorize the building of three new battleships and twelve cruisers, and the enlistment in the Navy of twenty thousand men and five thousand five hundred boys.

Read this case:

Mr. W. E. Hines, of No. 1 Beaver Row, locomotive engineer, says: "I am in a position to highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Last spring I was suffering from an acute lameness in my back, and a dull, lingering aching over my kidneys. I felt it in my head also, and there were pains over my eyes and in the top and back of my head and in the upper part of my spine. I was afraid I would not be able to attend to my duties as I was on night work and had to get my rest in day time, for on account of my back and these pains I could not rest well. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and obtained them from the Bush House Block drug store. They proved to be just the remedy I required and they removed the whole trouble. They left me bright and sound and I have had no return of the trouble since."

AN ULTIMATUM.

Such Partically Presented in Paris Monday.

BY OUR PEACE COMMISSIONERS

If Spain Should Accept It Would Have Equal Right to Trade in the Islands For Twelve Years.

OTHERWISE IT WILL LOSE ALL

Paris, Nov., 22.—The United States peace commissioners have undoubtedly made their final proposition here. When the conference opened yesterday afternoon Judge Day, addressing Senor Montero Rios and his colleagues of the Spanish commission, recurred to the protracted negotiations and reaffirmed the desire of the American commissioners to reach an amicable conclusion. Then, banding the American presentation to the interperter, Judge Day concluded his remarks by saying that the Americans, preferring not to break the armistice or to resume hostilities had determined to present another and final proposition, which he hoped would lead to a speedy and amicable adjustment.

The portion of the propoeition setting fourth the new proposal—the proposal that the United States must have possession of the entire Philippine archepelago, with a tender of $20,000,000 for a treaty cession of the islands—was then read. Without betraying their mental attitude, the Spanish commissioners suggested an adjournment until Wednesday.

The new proposition with its collaterals were embodied towards the end of the American memorandum, which filled 30 type written sheets. Only this part was read to the joint session, the memorandum being then delivered to the Spaniards for translation by their own staff.

Spain's proposition to invoke the officerz of a third power to construe the words "control, disposition and government of the Philippines," was rejected by the American commissioners on the ground that the diction of the third article of the protocol, dealing with the Philippines, is so broad and clear as to afford no justification for arbitration as between the parties to the agreement.

An analysis of the American memorandum shows that all other suggestions and considerations in it hinges upon treaty cession, at the moment named by the United States and within one week. In the event of cession, Spain may enjoy for a term of twelve years rights of commerce in the Philippines equal to those of the United States. If the United States acquire the islands by conquest Spain may not enjoy such rights.

Should Spain refuse cession she would remain liable for indemnity, national and individual, since the outbreak of the last Cuban insurrection. Should she refuse, she would also lose, probably, as further indemnity for the expenses of conquest, one of the Carolines, which she may not now sell; and other cable privileges within Spanish jurisdiction might be taken by the United States without any return to Spain for them.

This evening the Spaniards, doubtless, do not know whether they will accept or reject the American terms. They are telegraphing the substance of the American memorandum to Madrid, and they expect to reply at Wednesday's meeting.

Typical Hands.

There is a marked difference between the Spanish and the American hand. In the latter the third finger, which is called the finger of brilliancy, is square-tipped. This gives a practical turn to the intellectual developement. The second finger in this hand is spatulate tipped and well formed, showing a wholesome disposition that is free from morbid theories and that is impulsive enough to save from overcaution. The first finger is pointed, giving religious sentiment and ideality in art and sentiment. The first finger is rather long, which shows a desire to lead. The fourth finger is rather long and conical shaped, showing versatility and love of advancement. The thumb is large and independent looking, showing great energy. The principal lines of this hand, the lines of life, fate, head and heart, are all strong and well developed. It is a hand that is invincible; it follows no one type, but draws strength from various sources, and therefore possesses versatility. The Spanish hand belongs entirely to the pointed finger type of the dreamer and idealist, rather than one who can calculate and execute. There could never be a chance for the owner of such hands to win from the many-ideal, versatile American.

The people of Havana are eager to see the United States flag unfurled over their city. Old Glory carries with it the pledge of stable government, honest administration and prosperity.

STUCK FAST TO A CHAIR.

Luckily This Youth Was Fastened by His Hair, Not by His Clothes.

A society youth had a rather unpleasant time of it on an East End porch a few evenings ago. The people of the house have been making a general renovation of the premises, outside and in, and among other improvements painted and varnished the porch chairs. One of these chairs, it was one with a wicker back, was chosen by the youth as his resting place, and he found it a very comfortable one. Pretty soon, however, the heat of his head with its thick adornment, softened up the varnish and he suddenly discovered to his dire dismay that his hair was firmly stuck fast to the chair. He pulled gently, but it wouldn't let go. He pulled a little harder, it was still firm. He gave a jerk and the tears filled his eyes. But the varnish held on for dear life.

Of course the young woman on the porch continued in blissful ignorance of the situation. The young man answered her in monosyllables. His thoughts were all on his hair. But she kept up a lively chatting, and apparently did not notice how distrait he was.

Pretty soon the girl's mother came out on the porch. Now, he wanted to make a good impression upon the girl's mother. Yet he didn't rise. He didn't bow. He didn't even nod. It was too dusky to see the faces of the ladies, but he knew they regarded him as a first-class boor. He groaned inwardly and pulled on the varnish until he felt as if scalped.

The elderly lady said very little, and what she said had an icy flavor. The young woman made a brave effort to draw the visitor out, but she soon saw it was no use. Silence ensued. The youth knew it was time for him to go. Yet he didn't stir. He wondered what the night watchman would say when he saw him sitting there in the early morning hours.

Then he knew he must speak up.

"Excuse me," he said, "but—but do you—that is, could you lend me this chair—just long enough to take it home?"

"Sir?" said the elderly lady. She probably thought he was intoxicated.

"I'm in earnest," said the youth, dismally. "I never was more in earnest in my life. I find that I can't go home without the chair, and, of course, I can't stay here all night—at least, don't want to, and——"

"What is the matter?" faintly inquired the young woman.

"I think," said the youth, gravely, "I think it is varnish—but I really can't look to see."

"Dear me!" cried the elderly lady. "Are you stuck fast?"

"I am," said the youth.

"Wh-where?" gasped the young woman.

"My hair," said the youth.

"What a shame!" cried the young woman in a relieved tone.

"It's dreadful!" echoed the old lady.

So then they got at him and the old lady found some linseed oil and softened up the varnish, and the young woman got the cutest little pair of scissors and cut off a few particularly stubborn locks, and they fussed over him until the young man reluctantly gave a little sharp pull and was free.

"And now, madam," he said to the elderly lady, "will you permit to make amends for my late incivility?" And he shook hands with her and made her his best bow, and the old lady was delighted. And everybody felt so pleasant that the young man stayed a full half hour longer.

But he sat in another chair.

One of Them.

He goes about, from day to day,
With downcast eyes and weary air;
And yet a month ago he might
Have had his pick among the fair.

He went away, with martial tread,
To help set stricken Cuba free;
No man among the soldier band
Was more admired than he.

But they sent him home, and ne'er again
May he assume a warrior's part;
To-day the women shun him, for
Alas, he's got a cigarette heart!

What He Denied.

"That translated letter is a miserable attempt to misrepresent me!" said the Spanish diplomat.

"Do you contradict the assertion that you are a chief of spies?"

"No."

"Can you refute the charges that you have assailed men high in the affairs of your own government?"

"I do not wish to."

"What is it, then, that you deny?"

"The grammar."

Sensible People.

A friend of ours who is in the habit of introducing his expressions of opinion by observing that "most sensible people think so and so," was asked the other day how he found out what "most sensible people" thought. His answer was natural enough: "Most sensible people think as I do." All he has to do is to find out what he thinks.—Boston Watchman.

Just Put Him Off.

"Well," asked the motorman, "did you manage to collect that little bill from that conductor?"

"No," answered the disgusted passenger. "I got tired trying to collect it at his house and the other day I caught him on his car."

"What did he do?"

"The same as usual—put me off."

Dropping Him Hard.

He—"Ah, yes, I know I'm my own worst enemy."

She—"Oh, you egotist!"

Scrofulous Humor

Blood in Terrible Condition and All Run Down in Health—Has Become Strong and Healthy.

"I was all run down, blood in terrible condition and I was troubled with a severe scrofulous humor which caused me great suffering. I took medicine for a long time, but received no permanent benefit. At this time I was working in a general store, and I thought I would look over the medicines and see if I could find something that would hit my case. I read an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it. The first bottle helped me wonderfully and I continued its use until I had taken nine bottles. By this time I felt like a new man, and since then have not been sick a day. I am now strong and healthy and I have such confidence in Hood's Sarsaparilla that I recommend it as the best medicine on earth." JOHN J. LITTLE, Munnsville, N. Y.

MRS. BLACK'S CHURCH.

Her Coachman Thought It Too Humble For a Cabinet Lady.

During Mrs. Jeremiah Black's life in Washington, when her distinguished husband was in the cabinet, she was one of the most efficient helpers in the early struggles of the Vermont Avenue Christian church. With the little handful of that faith who "broke bread" in some private house or obscure hall, she went regularly. A well remembered anecdote of that time illustrates her fidelity and at the same time her gentle, kindly nature. The church was meeting in Temperance hall. Judge Black's driver, Peter, sensitive for the honor of the family, or more so for his carriage, felt it to be something of a disgrance to stand before such a building on Sunday. One day he touched upon the subject as gently as he could by saying:

"Mrs. Black, that ain't a very fine church you and the judge go to."

"No, Peter," said the lady, "it is not a very grand one."

"Mrs. Black, do you 'spec' to 'tend that church every Sunday?"

"Yes, Peter, until they get a better one."

"Well, Mrs. Black, I wanted to ax you somethin, though I don't much like to say it, marm."

"What is it, Peter?"

"Well, marm, I wanted to tell you de drivers of de other members of de cabinet kinder makes fun of me 'bout standin 'fore dat meetin house, and I wanted to ax you if you hadn't no objection to let me drive down to dat fine Presbyterian church where de other ing men go and stand dere wid my carriage until your meetin is out, an den drive back for you and de judge."

"All right, Peter, if you'll be on time," said Mrs. Black, and Peter satisfied his mind that he saved the credit of the family and of his horses and carriage afterward by standing regularly with the fine turnouts of the other cabinet officers.—Washington Post.

WOMEN AND JEWELS.

The Combination Is as Old as Time and Not a New Fad.

The critic who finds much to blame in modern women in the number of jewels they wear on both this and the other side of the Atlantic will find that history had set the fashion long before the fair creatures of today had opened their lovely eyes. According to Pliny, Lollia Paulina, the wife of Caligula, wore on her hands, arms, neck, head and waist pearls and diamonds to the value of $1,680,000. Faustina had a ring worth $200,000, Domitia possessed one worth $300,000, and Cæsonia had a bracelet worth $400,000. Seneca cried out that one pearl would no longer do for a lady, but she must insist on at least three for each shell-like ear. The weight of these, it is hard to believe, could ever be endured by even the vainest of fair maids and matrons.

There were women in ancient Rome whose sole occupation was healing the torn ears of ladies whose ornaments had proved too heavy for the pretty lobes. Poppæa's earrings were worth $750,000, and Calpurnia, the wife of the mighty Julius Cæsar, had a pair valued at twice that sum. Later on the extravagance had not seemed to have died out. Marie de' Medici had a dress prepared for the baptism of her children, and when she attempted to wear the marvelous creation she found that it was so heavy that she could not stand in it. It was trimmed with 32,000 pearls and 3,000 diamonds.

Men, however, excelled in costly apparel in the middle ages, and Philip the Good of Burgundy frequently wore jewels valued at $200,000. When he walked along the streets, people climbed over each other to get a peep at him. The Duke of Buckingham once wore at the court of St. James a costume costing $400,000. The dress of the nobles of the middle ages was literally covered with gold and precious stones.—Chicago News.

Lady Dufferin, in her amusing book, "Viceregal Life In India," gives some good examples of "baboo" English. One of the natives was told to write an essay on the horse in an examination, and this was the result: "The horse is a very noble animal, but when irritated ceases to do so."

Permanent Investment.

"You promised to lend me $5, but you have only given me $4," said Jim Neverpay to his friend Charlie Gotsome.

"Yes, I know. I am keeping the other dollar to buy postage stamps to put on the dunning letters I'll have to write you before you pay me back the other $4."—New York World.

CHEWING GUM.

Bicyclists May Read How Their Great Friend is Made.

Four million pounds of gum chicle, the product of the Mexican sapota tree, entered the United States during 1895. This entire product, valued at nearly $1,500,000, became the basis of chewing gum. A walk through a leading chewing-gum factory is interesting. Here over 1,000,000,000 pieces of gum are annually produced and shipped to every portion of the world. Three hundred employes are engaged in the manufacture of the gum, the first step of which is the importation of the raw chicle, which is gathered by the peons in Mexico and exported in bales containing about 150 pounds each.

The gum is taken from the bales and chopped into small pieces. These are freed from tree bark and chips by steaming and picking; then it is ground in mills making 3,400 revolutions a minute. The ground gum is subjected to a continuous heat of 140 degrees Fahrenheit in drying rooms. From here the gum is sent to the "white aproned cook," who adds the purest sugar and the freshest cream, granulated pepsin, powdered guru or kola or other desired ingredient to it, and cooks it in a steam-jacketed cauldron, where it is turned and mixed by an ingenious double-acting heater or rotating paddle, until it has assumed the consistency of bread dough.

Now the "dough boys" take hold of it and knead it in finely powdered sugar, passing it to the "rollers," where is is rolled between steam rollers until it is of the proper thickness, when it is whisked away to the "markers." The markers are steel-knived rollers, which leave their impress upon the long sheets of appetizing gum before it goes to the "seasoning room," after which it is broken on the lines left by the markers. Now the gum finds its way to the "wrapping room." The nimble fingers of 150 dainty maidens are here at play. Under their deft touch waxed paper, tin foil and pretty wrappers envelop the gum quick as a wink, and in another moment the "packers" have the gum to place in jars or boxes, wherein it is shipped for sale to the general public.

Cruel Gibe.

Belle (to cadet)—How you do resemble my old aunt in appearance. All you need to make the appearance perfect is a mustache.—Fliegende Blatter.

Great Combination.

John B. Cremmins, of Charlotte, N. C., has a combination of a dog, a cat and a rat which dwell together in harmony, to the amazement of all his neighbors. They may be seen any day asleep in his window, with the cat's head reposing on the dog's back and the rat taking a sun bath nestled in the fur of the traditional enemy.

THE SIDE-SADDLE.

Much Talk as to Whether Women Should Not Abandon It for the Cross-Saddle.

A fierce controversy is raging in California as to whether women should not abandon the old side-saddle, and use the cross-saddle, like men. Many have already adopted the innovation, which was suggested by the experience of cyclists. As usual in such matters, there has been a great deal of nonsense printed in the papers as to the difficulty of a suitable costume for riding cross-saddle. Of course there are familiar forms of dress that lend themselves admirably to riding in this way.

For a girl or woman to ride cross-saddle is, however, not an innovation, strictly speaking. Until the present century, riding in this way was not unusual. There are letters extant from the great Empress Maria Theresa to her daughter, Queen Marie Antoinette, written about 1775, advising her to give up riding, especially riding cross-saddle.

Queen Victoria was an excellent horsewoman in her younger days, and it is recorded as a beautiful sight when, shortly before the Crimean War, she reviewed the troops at the Chobham Camp, on horseback, wearing a scarlet jacket, made like a general officer's coat, and a hat with a general officer's plumes.

A Good Mayonnaise.

To make a good mayonnaise dressing put a quarter of a teaspoonful of dry English mustard in a deep soup plate, add the yoke of a raw egg and with a wooden fork mix these ingredients to a paste. Take a bottle of olive oil in your left hand and with the fork in the right hand stir in the oil as you slowly drop it with the mixed mustard and egg. Keep dropping the oil and stirring the mixture briskly till it becomes thick and waxy, then thin it a little with a few drops of tarregon vinegar. Again resume dropping in the oil and stirring it till the mayonnaise gets stiff again, then again thin it with the vinegar. Repeat this procell until you have the required amount of dressing. Be sure it is the proper thickness. Stand the dressing on the ice in the soup plate until ready to serve. Never put salt or pepper in a mayonnaise. Those condiments make a different dressing which is not a true mayonnaise.

A SICILIAN MYSTERY

PRINCESS CARINI FOUR YEARS A PRISONER IN HER OWN HOME.

Shut Up in a Closet With Her Blind Daughter by Her Steward Lover and Starved—Curious Light on South Italian Life—Ingenious Fortune Hunting.

Palermo, the most wideawake and important city in Sicily, has just been startled by the discovery that it was possible for two well-known women of noble family to be kept close prisoners for four years in their own palace on one of the principal streets of the town without any one knowing it. A reputable lawyer recently informed the police authorities that the Princess Carini, a member of the highest aristocracy of Sicily, was kept prisoner with her blind 20-year-old daughter in her villa in the Via della Liberta by her steward, Giovanni Cannella. A large force of police and carbineers was sent to the villa to make sure that no one escaped; at the door the porter told them that the Princess was travelling abroad. They passed him and were stopped by Cannella's mother, who told them they could not enter the house in the Princess's absence. They arrested her, broke in the doors, and after a long search found the two women in a dark closet, nearly naked, half frozen and starving. Cannella, his family and all the servants were arrested, the remarkable story of the Princess was verified, and the police are now hunting for the accomplices in the crime.

Maria Lo[illegible] Grua, Principessa Carini has had plenty of excitement during the course of her life. In her youth she was a noted society beauty and at 18 married the Marchese Artale di Bollalto e Sant' Onofrio. After some years of married life her husband surprised her with a lover, secured a judicial separation with the custody of the children, but left to her the youngest child, a little girl born blind of whom he denied that he was the father. This was about twenty years ago. The Princess led a fast life after that, taking one lover after another, losing her money at Monte Carlo and estranging all her relatives by open scandal; even Palermo society had to give her up. When the cholera epidemic broke out in Sicily in 1885, however, the Princess Carini volunteered as a nurse and spent months in the hospitals of Palermo tending the sick.

In 1892 her mother died, leaving her an estate that yields an income of $10,000 a year. The Princess, by that time a middle-aged woman, fell in love with Cannella, then a clerk earning $2 a week, and a married man, though she did not know it. She made him her steward at a high salary and set up a strange sort of a household, such as are not uncommon, however, in southern Europe. The Princess, with her daughter, occupied rooms on the ground floor of one wing of the palace, the steward, with his family, rooms in the opposite wing, and they took their meals together. Cannella then prepared his plan to obtain possession of the whole of the Princess's fortune. Little by little he removed all of the old servants and put in their places creatures of his own. He maltreated the Princess and her daughter, forbade their appearing at the windows or on the balconies, and spread the story that they had gone abroad. When he found the statement accepted by whatever persons inquired for the Princess, his usage of the women grew harsher, he deprived them of clothes, of fuel, and of food, so that they were forced to beg for bread from the gardener and such servants as they saw from time to time. His intention was apparently to drive them mad or to kill them slowly.

The unfortunate women were completely in his power. The Princess, half out of her mind, signed every paper that he directed her to sign. Cannella meanwhile lived in fine style, kept a carriage, but showed himself to be a careful administrator of the property which he intended should be his. So matters went on for four years. At last Cannella drew up a will for the Princess to sign by which everything was bequeathed to him. That roused the Princess; through all her adventures she had shown a passionate fondness for her helpless daughter, and when the will was signed, if they were not both suppressed, her child would be left at Cannella's mercy. She refused to do his bidding, and, working on the gardener's feelings, induced him to take a letter to the lawyer, who called in the police.

As this affair occurred in Sicily, the Italian newspapers attributed it to the workings of the Mafia. This seems very unlikely. Cannella's accomplices arrested so far are members of his own family and dependents of his; those sought for are the persons to whom he intrusted his stealings. The scheme, Machiavellian in its simplicity, was carried out with the strict attention to business that marks the Italian lower classes, and could have been foiled at any time had the Princess Carini roused herself to action as she did at the end.

Danger of Overheating Houses.

In our modern rooms and houses where furnace heat is used, there is great danger of overheating the atmosphere. One should always have a thermometer which can be easily carried from place to place. See that it does not mark over 70 degrees in the winter. Try to keep the whole house of an equal temperature, and not to go from hot to cold rooms.

A Parisian inventor has made a watch which speaks the hours instead of striking them.

Quite a Simple Matter.

Jilkins is the factaotum of an artist who has made some noise in the world and is quite as important a personage in his own estimation, as his master. One day a lady called on the artist in the absence of the latter and was received by Jilkins.

"Dear me," she cried, glancing first at an incomplete picture and then at Jilkins, "I declare it is very much like you!"

"It is me," said Jilkins, with a superior air. "I sits for all his old men. That's what he's specially good at."

"You must be a very useful person to your employer," observed the visitor. "So you think that Mr. Blank, R. A. is especially good at old men?"

"Yes. Cos why? He's got nothing to do! I order his frames, wash his brushes, set his palettes, mix his colors and sit there for him to look at. How can he help being good? He's got nothing to do but shove the paint on!"

STILL DICKERING WITH DEMOCRATS

The Van Valkenberg-Blankenburg Combine at Their Old Game.

BUT THEY WILL FAIL AGAIN.

An Attempt to Throw the Speakership of the House to the Democracy in a Last Desperate Effort to Capture the United States Senatorship—The Party Wreckers Responsible For the Defeat of Republican Congressmen and Candidates For the Legislature.

(Special Correspondence.)

Harrisburg, Nov. 22.—Plans are already under way for the inauguration of Colonel William A. Stone as governor of Pennsylvania, and for the organization of the legislature, which will in January next undoubtedly re-elect Colonel Matthew Stanley Quay to the United States senate. Colonel Stone, who since the election has been taking a well earned rest, is expected here shortly, when the local Republicans hope to have an opportunity to confer with him regarding the proposed plans for his inauguration. So great was the interest aroused among Republicans of Pennsylvania in the late gubernatorial election, which was largely due to the fear of the election of the Democratic candidate, Mr. Jenks, that it is expected that the installation of Colonel Stone in the governor's chair will be the occasion of the gathering of one of the largest crowds that has ever been assembled here to witness an event of this character. The feeling of resentment at the guerrilla campaign waged by John Wanamaker and his associates against Colonel Stone was fittingly expressed by the Republicans of the Keystone state in the magnificent plurality, over 120,000, given their candidate at the polls. This feeling will be accentuated at the inauguration of Colonel Stone by a popular demonstration which will put the seal of condemnation on the whole Wanamaker-Blenkenburg-Van Valkenberg outfit.

From the outset the Wanamaker game has been a game of bluff, pure and simple, and in every case it has resulted in complete failure. But with a supply of nerve apparently as unlimited and inexhaustible as their money barrels, these political adventurers continue their tactics of disorganization and now announce their intention to prevent, if possible, the holding of the time honored Republican caucus, both for the selection of a Republican speaker of the house of representatives and the naming of a Republican candidate for the United States senate. They are putting out the most absurd and ridiculous claims in the hope of debarring Republicans from entering their party's caucus.

THE SAME OLD DEMOCRATS.

Commenting on the latest move of these selfish manipulators a member of congress, who has just been re-elected, while stopping off here on his way to Washington, had this to say:

"In its latest pronunciamento, explaining 'how it was done,' the Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League had a good deal to say about the large number of anti-Quay men it had elected to the legislature. For instance, in the proclamation referred to it was stated that 'in 12 out of 15 counties visited by John Wanamaker and other speakers under the auspices of this league during the last three weeks of the campaign all elected anti-Quay members of the legislature.'

"Upon the same principle that a spade should be called a spade, a Democrat should be called a Democrat wherever he is found. The truth is, in the 12 counties referred to Democrats were elected—out-and-out, died-in-the-wool, yard-wide Democrats, disciples of William J. Bryan and advocates of free silver. That is the kind of 'anti-Quay' members elected to the legislature through the aid of John Wanamaker and the Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League. And that was precisely what this coterie of ambitious statesmen planned and strove hard to accomplish for six months prior to Nov. 8, to wit, the election of Democrats to the legislature.

"What are the facts? Last spring the Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League made a fight at the Republican primaries in a score or more of counties in behalf of certain candidates for the legislature, but were overwhelmingly defeated. In only one county of the state, where there was a contest, were the friends of Senator Quay unsuccessful, and the result there was due solely to a fight for the congressional nomination. When, therefore, the primaries were over and all the nominations had been made the Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League discovered that of the 229 Republican nominees for the senate and house not more than ten of them were under their control or in sympathy with their reactionary program.

"Their next step lay in the direction of attempted combinations with the Democrats, with a view to putting coalition legislative tickets in the field. Owing, however, to the disposition upon the part of the Democrats to have all or nothing the Wanamaker coterie succeeded in effecting combinations in only four counties of the state—Chester, Blair, Huntingdon and Delaware—and in these only five former Republicans were named, the remaining nominees in the four counties mentioned being Democrats. The Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League supported, therefore, in the entire state only the original ten Republicans nominated by them at the primaries, together with the five so-called Republicans who were running independently and in the Democratic column. The ten regular nominees were elected, being supported by the friends of Mr. Quay, though known to be opposed to him, and in addition three of the five former Republicans—two in Chester and one in Blair—were elected. This was the absolute limit of the influence of Mr. Wanamaker and the Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League, so far as the election of Republican legislators was concerned. But their efforts did not cease here. Animated by the determination to disrupt the Republican party, should such a course be necessary in order to defeat Senator Quay, they devoted their energies in one-half of the counties of the state, where only Republican and Democratic candidates were in the field, to secure the election of the latter, and with some success. In Schuylkill, Cambria, Crawford, Venango, Fayette, Union, Mifflin, Carbon, Wyoming, Cameron and eight or ten other Republican counties, desperate and successful efforts were made to defeat the regular Republican nominees, though in almost every instance they were new men, and in no way responsible for the work of the last legislature. Into these counties the Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League not only poured tons of literature, full of misrepresentations and lies, and held meetings by the dozens, but what was more effective contributed thousands of dollars to the local organizations, all in the name of 'reform.' It is not to be wondered at that they succeeded in electing Democrats to the legislature, and they are entitled to all the credit and glory accompanying such a procedure. The only wonder is that their success was not greater, for they adopted the same tactics in at least a score of counties besides those named—among others Armstrong, Beaver, Dauphin, Erie, Franklin, Lebanon, Lawrence, McKean, Warren, Perry, Potter, Snyder, Susquehanna, Washington and Westmoreland, but, thanks to the intelligence and incorruptibility of the voters of these counties, the plans of the conspirators came to naught, and the Republican nominees in these and other counties assailed were elected. Had the plans of the Wanamaker cabal succeeded fully Pennsylvania would have been represented in the United States senate by a free silver Democrat.

"One cannot help admiring the sublime assurance of the Blankenburg-Van Valkenberg Business League in claiming the election of 'anti-Quay members of the legislature' in the persons of 30 or 40 straightout Democrats. Though, when one recalls Colonel Quay's services in 1888 in defeating Cleveland by the election of General Harrison, it is not difficult to imagine these Democratic legislators as 'anti-Quay.'"

NO DANGER OF A BOLT.

There is not the slightest danger of a bolt from the Republican caucus on the organization of the house of representatives. The Wanamaker outfit will be unable to unite the Democratic vote and their small contingent of Republicans on any candidate for speaker, for many reasons. In the first place the Democrats will have a candidate of their own for the speakership. They have already several aspirants for the honor of the nomination of the Democratic caucus for speaker, and none of these men will retire in favor of a Republican who is unable to command the support of his colleagues of his own party faith.

"You do not suppose that the Democratic members are fools enough to turn in for a Wanamaker Republican for speaker, do you?" remarked one of the Democratic members-elect.

"After pulling the Wanamaker chestnuts out of the fire," he continued, "and electing his man speaker we would find John's speaker using the power of his committee appointments among the Republicans in order to elect Wanamaker United States senator, and thus we Democrats would be out in the cold. No, we have the big end of the proposition, and we are not going to play second fiddle to the little band of disappointed Republicans who have clustered around the Wanamaker barrel. They are entitled to another guess."

While the Democrats will turn down this latest Wanamaker proposition good and hard the Republicans who have respect for themselves and for the opinion of their Republican neighbors will be slow to jeopardize their party standing and to have questions raised as to underlying influences that made them desert their party and enter into a deal for the advancement of Democracy and the selfish ends of certain individuals. Wanamaker and his entire combination cannot possibly get a dozen Republicans, whatever their affiliations may be, who would have the hardihood to vote for a Democratic candidate for speaker of the house in Republican Pennsylvania. The temper of the public mind, forcibly expressed at the late election, is such as would be promptly made manifest at an exhibition of party treachery of this character. The last campaign in this state was fought out fairly and squarely on national issues. The result of the election was a signal victory for Republicanism and for the administration of President McKinley. With the presidential campaign of 1900 about to open, anything that would advance the interests of the Democracy, such as the election of a Democrat to preside over the house in Pennsylvania, would be indignantly resented by the Republicans of the entire country.

The tactics of the Wanamakerites are on a par with those resorted to in the attempt to defeat National Chairman Mark Hanna for the United States senate. A similar combination was proposed when the Bushnellites joined with the Democrats, but they failed, although one Republican state senwith the Democrats, but they failed, organization of the state senate, with the result that he is today the most despised and most ostracized man in politics in the state of Ohio.

But there is little danger of Republicans in Pennsylvania following his example.

GUFFEY IN THE GAME.

The election of a Democrat to the speakership would, of course, materially aid Millionaire James M. Guffey, the member of the Democratic national committee from Pennsylvania, who is a full fledged candidate for United States senator.

But the Guffey-Wanamaker combine is bound to meet with disaster once more. The Republican party wreckers have exhausted themselves. The flood of vilifications and libelous misstatements, the sensational arrests for political effect, the spending of immense sums of money to accomplish the defeat of Republican candidates for the legislature, the iniquitous deals with Democrats and other peculiar methods of an unprecedented campaign, have all gone for naught.

There will be a Republican elected speaker of the house of representatives, Colonel Stone will be inaugurated governor and Colonel Quay will be triumphantly elected to succeed himself in the United States senate.

Wanamaker in Pennsylvania politics will then be a thing of the past—and gone for ever.

THEY DECLARE FOR QUAY.

Republican Members of the Senate and House Say They Will Vote For His Re-election.

PHILADELPHIA LEADS OFF.

Wanamakerism Given a Stinging Rebuke in the Home of the Ambitious Millionaire, Where His Political Aspirations Met With an Overwhelming Condemnation in the Seventy-five Thousand Plurality Given Colonel Stone by the Quaker City Republicans, and Now Their Representatives in the Legislature Turn Him Down Hard.

(Special Correspondence.)

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—Quickly following Colonel Quay's formal announcement of his candidacy for re-election to the United States senate members of both branches of the legislature in this city, the home of John Wanamaker, have come out in public declarations of their intention to vote for the re-election of the senior senator. It has been a source of keen disappointment to the Wanamaker managers to read these hearty expressions of good will for Senator Quay, after the malignant and desperate assaults that have been made upon him personally and politically. The fact that many members of the legislature who had been counted upon to oppose Senator Quay have already proclaimed their purpose to vote for him surprised the amateur politicians who have been prominent in the Wanamaker organization.

Here are a few significant expressions from both senators and representatives:

Senator John M. Scott, who served in the house for some time, and was honored with an election to the senate in the Sixth district, talked interestingly on Quay's candidacy.

"It will be a pleasure for me," said he, "to vote for Colonel Quay for United States senator. His stalwart Republicanism and his superb leadership must commend him to the members of his party. Who can forget the gallant fight made against the Democracy when, in the bitterest campaign in the history of this country, he succeeded in landing the party triumphant in the Harrison-Cleveland contest of 1888? In this memorable campaign he set to work from the outset right in the heart of the 'enemy's country,' and it was but a short time before he had Tammany Hall at bay. When the Tammanyites saw defeat staring them in the face they once more attempted their desperate tactics of counting out a successful Republican candidate for president. They found that for once they had met their match—Quay was there, and that tells the story.

MCKINLEY'S PRAISE.

"Senator Quay's service in the United States senate for Pennsylvania, for her industries and her people, are a matter of history. There could be no higher tribute paid to him than the noble words from the lips of President McKinley, when at the doorsteps of his own home in Canton, O., he addressed a delegation of Pennsylvanians who called upon him in the last presidential campaign. Major McKinley at that time referred to Colonel Quay's speech in the senate in opposition to the Wilson bill, which was the longest address ever made in that body, and which would, no doubt, have lasted many days longer had not the Democrats yielded to Senator Quay's demands in the interest of Pennsylvania's industries. Senator Quay's labors in behalf of the commerce of his native and neighboring states, by his staunch advocacy in Washington of measures looking to the improvement of the Delaware river and harbor and of the water highways in western Pennsylvania are in line with his watchful concern of the interests of his constituents. In Senator Quay Pennsylvania has in the United States senate a man of marvelous influence with Republicans throughout the nation, and especially with his colleagues in congress. Any legislation that may be needed by the commmercial and industrial interests of Pennsylvania will be backed by Senator Quay, thus equipped as could be no other man that might be sent to Washington from Pennsylvania.

"The personal qualities of Senator Quay, his scholarly attainments and loyalty to his friends commend him to all who know him.

QUAY'S SOLDIER RECORD.

"This a patriotic year. Colonel Quay was a brave Union soldier with an honorable record in action, and he was honored by congress with a medal of honor for meritorious service while on the field of battle. Pennsylvania having just honored another brave soldier, Colonel William A. Stone, by electing him with a magnificent majority to the governorship, it is fitting and proper that the Keystone state should send Colonel Quay, a soldier, to the senate in January next."

"I shall vote for Senator Quay, and I have no doubt but that he will be elected and that his election will meet with the approval of the people of Pennsylvania."

State Senators George A. Vare, Francis A. Osborne and Charles L. Brown, of Philadelphia, and Representatives MacIver, Selby, Adams, Whittingham, Gransback, Noblitt, Salter, Reibel, Fahey, Lloyd, Keyser and a dozen other Philadelphia members of the house have within the last few days come out publicly in favor of the re-election of Senator Quay, and declared their intention to vote for him.

And so it is, the feeling among Republicans in favor of Senator Quay's re-election is such that no tactics to which his opponents may resort, nor the expenditure of any amount of money, can defeat him.

Bryan's Signal of Distress.

After a week's cogitation over the astounding results of the elections Col. Bryan has found it impossible to adhere to his good resolution to keep his mouth shut upon affairs political. He prefaces what he has to say with assigning the reason why he had kept quiet during the campaign, namely, his employment in the Nation's service and fear that his action might be misconstrued. It will be generally conceded that his reason was a good one, and his fair-minded political opponents will give him full credit for his prudent conduct. There is no particular reason why he should not have expressed himself upon the result of the elections after they had been held, as his action could not then be construed as intended to embarrass the administration or give aid or comfort to the Nation's enemies. At the same time it must be admitted that, in view of his silence thus far there was no very good reason to be urged for his saying anything at all at this time. The elections had been over a week when he spoke. The people were all aware of their results and had drawn their own conclusions as to what they meant. Nearly a year will elapse before another important State election will be held, and two years before a National one. Long before either of these periods end Colonel Bryan will probably become a private citizen and a busy politician.

In speaking now Col. Bryan has simply displayed a signal of distress. His vehement declaration that free silver and the other heretical isms of the Democratic National platform were not given a fatal blow by the voters last week simply heralds to the world the fact that he fears they are at their last gasp and will so on be a corpse unless given new life by his breath. Democratic National Chairman Jones, evidently imbued with the same idea, yesterday rushed into the newspapers to declare to the people that Richard Croker was wrong in assuming that the issues of 1896 were dead. It will take a great deal more, however, than the assertions of Col. Bryan and Chairman Jones to convince the people that there is real life in those issues. In fact, the frantic assertions of these two shining apostles of wrong principles that the latter still live will only serve to make the people generally more certain that they are really dead or in gravest danger of dissolution.—Pittsburg Times.

Steeple Jack's Daring Feat.

Newark has a "steeple Jack" whose daring will not hereafter be questioned. His name is Louis Toerk. Last week he undertook the task of slating the tower of Seton Hall college at South Orange. The roof of the college building is 95 feet above the ground; above it rises a tower 50 feet in height, and on the top of the tower a cross whose tip is 152 feet in the air. As there was no wind on Saturday afternoon Toerk decided to gild the cross. As he worked a crowd of college youths watched him from below.

"You daren't stand on the cross," shouted one.

Louis laid his brush on the paint pot and climbed to the cross-piece of the cross and stood erect on it. Then, to the amazement of the lads below, he placed one foot on the tip of the upright of the cross and then the other and stood straight as an arrow.

A breath of wind would have been fatal. When he let himself down again safely to the improvised shelf on which he was working there was a great outburst of cheers.

SOME newspapers have stated that after March 4, for the first time in the history of the State, there will be two Republicans representing New Jersey in the United States Senate. This is incorrect, as from November, 1866, to March 1869, the Senators from New Jersey were Frederick T. Frelinghuysen and Alexander G. Cattell, both Republicans. For many years Ohio had Senators of opposite faiths, but she has changed at last. Twice since 1861 has Pennsylvania had a Democratic Senator. But New Jersey, so long reliably Democratic, now to have two Republican Senators is a big fingerboard on the highway of politics showing the drift of Eastern sentiment.

The White House Design.

The White House is an extra copy of the Duke of Leinster's palace, Dublin. In March, 1792, the commissioners on building advertised for "a plan for a president's house to be erected in the city of Washington." The prize offered was $500, and that of James Hoban, a young Irish mechanic, was accepted. The design was supposed to be original, but when the house was completed it was learned that Hoban had copied it from the duke's palace.

BENJAMIN HARRISON in the senate as successor of Turpie, and Chauncey Depew in Murphy's place, would certainly be a long step upward.

Newspapers Enemies.

The Fremont News has a very correct idea as to who are the enemies of the newspapers when it says:

"Of course a newspaper has enemies and several of them. First and foremost the man who owes a newspaper an honest debt and will not pay for it, can be counted as an enemy. The man who wants an office and complains because the newspapers will not champion him in preference to all others is pretty apt to become an enemy. The man who wants to dictate to a paper and is not allowed to do so, is a sure enemy. The ruffian and the bully never like a bold and fearless newspaper. The sneak and the coward fear newspapers and consequently do not like them. But of all men that a newspaper should dislike, is the man whom it has befriended and assisted and who proves the ingrate, who turns his back on the paper after securing all from it possible. We can respect in a certain degree an open and avowed enemy, but an ingrate, never.

Excess Checks Will be Used.

Shortely after the war revenue law went into effect, both the Philadelphia & Reading railway and Pennsylvania railroad company discontinued the issuance of excess checks to all passengers who purchased their tickets from the conductor, as under a ruling of the internal revenue department, it was compulsory to affix a two-cent stamp on all checks of this nature issued. The matter was carried to the United States attorney general and he recently decided that no stamp was necessary on these checks. The railroad companies mentioned above have been notified of this decision and they in turn have notified their conductors to resume the collection of ten cent excess and to issue as before an excess check.

MEN AND WOMEN.

Governor Pingree, of Michigan, started life as a poor mill hand. Now he is the head of a business, the value of the yearly product of which is about $1,000,000.

Joseph W. Babcock, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, although he went west early in life, is a native of Vermont where he was born in 1850.

M. Carolus Duran, the well known French portrait painter, has been elected president of the National Society of Fine Arts, in place of the late Puvis de Chavannes.

Sir Edwin Arnold the other day praised Kipling for his "Recessional." "Yes," said Kipling, "it was just at the right time, and that is all the battle. It's not what you write, but when."

Mrs. William C. Whitney's charities in Washington, Mass., have not been forgotten by the townspeople, and at the Methodist church there, last week, prayers were offered for her speedy recovery.

The Rev. David MacCrae, of Glasgow, Scotland, has sailed for this country, in order to study the temperance question in the United States. He is the author of a book entitled "Americans at Home," which was the result of a visit which he made in 1867.

Noah Brooks says that the originator of the now famous "Punch, Brothers, Punch with Care," was the late Isaac H. Bromley, of the New York Tribune. The "skit" first appeared in Scribner's during 1876. Mark Twain afterwards wrote a story about the terrible effect which the verse had upon him, and most of his readers have supposed the verse also was his work.

—Mrs. M. Templeton, of Scottdale had a peculiar experience and narrow escape from death the other evening, says the Greensburg Tribune. About 7 o'clock a blood vessel on her ankle burst, and the woman began to bleed rapidly. In a short time she became unconscious, her eyes being fixed and both pulse and breathing stopped. A physician had been summoned, and, after making an examination, pronounced her dead. After lying in this condition for an hour or more some one noticed that she had begun breathing again. Medical aid was again secured and restoratives administered. After several hours' hard work, she sufficiently recovered to take some nourishment and is now on a fair way to recovery.

ONE of the most important results of the election was the redemption of the federal senate from the control of populists and free coinage advocates. Stewart, of Nevada, it is likely, will retain his seat, but some of his most rapid colleagues will permanently retire from public life after March 4.

THE satisfactory result of the recent election almost certainly guarantees a long period of prosperity for the country and its people.

ABOUT PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Ex-President Harrison denies the report that his health is poor, and declares he has not felt so well for many years.

Colonel Van B. Wisker, of Sedalia, Mo., was, during 1857-58, English instructor to Alphonso XII, father of the present king of Spain.

A Lewis Carroll memorial cot has just been endowed in the London Children's hospital, in honor of the author of "Alice in Wonderland."

The new minister from Japan, Jutaro Komira, was among the first Japanese to graduate from an American university. He received his degree from Harvard in 1875.

Lady Butler, the artist, whose "Roll Call" made her famous, sums up the early vicissitudes of that picture thus: "Rejected and damaged; rejected, accepted and skied."

Bishop Doane, who stands for the anti-divorce canon in the Episcopal church, is descended from Roman Catholic ancestors, and Bishop Potter, who opposes him on this question, comes from what was originally a Quaker family.

Frederick Macmonnies, the sculptor, in speaking of the group of "War" which he is at work on for Prospect park, Brooklyn, said: "Whatever the war has done for the country, it has done me undoubted good and given me fresh inspirations and impressions for a lifetime."

Thurston on the Victory.

On the result of the elections United States Senator John M. Thurston says:

"The sweeping victory in the west, including Nebraska, means the unconditional indorsement of President McKinley's administration, the conduct of the war and his foreign policy. The battle was fought on the straight gold standard platform and the result, in my judgment, absolutely eliminates free silver as a national issue in 1900.

"In Nebraska the fusionists early in the campaign practically abandoned the free silver issue and for a time attempted to maintain themselves by criticism of the conduct of the war. Driven from this, they fell back on the McCleary bill.

The Republican campaign was very active and aggressive and successfully met the three issues in detail. Above everything else, however, was the patriotic determination to stand by the administration."

Seems as if consumption always picks out the brightest and best. Fully one-sixth of all the deaths that occur in the world are caused by consumption. Many things were once considered impossible. It would be strange if medical science did not make some progress. The telegraph and telephone, the phonograph, the electric light—all were once impossible, and once it was impossible to cure consumption. That was before the time of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Taken according to directions, this standard remedy will cure 98 per cent of all cases of consumption. Consumption is caused and fostered by impurity in the blood. It is cured by purity and richness in the blood—surely, certainly cured by the "Medical Discovery." It builds up solid healthy flesh and vigorous strength.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a 1,008 page medical work, profusely illustrated, will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover postage only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

ONE of the most unfortunate results of the election was the defeat of Congressman Charles W. Stone, of the Warren district, for re-election. That distinguished advocate of free silver, Joseph Sibley, was elected by a large majority as a Democrat, in a district that ordinarily gives 2,500 Republican majority. There is no accounting for this landslide except it be that Mr. Sibley pursued his old plan of scattering boodle by the barrel in every district. It is unfortunate that Mr. Stone was defeated, but he need not despair, for there are many honors in store for him yet.

ANY policy of road improvements which is not in the farmers' interest is not our policy. This explains the action of the League of American Wheelmen in favoring the introduction of state aid to roads. In advocating such a system of state aid, and the division of the cost of building roads among city and country tax payers, we feel that we are relieving the farmer of the burden of responsibility and taxes for country roads, instead of loading him up with heavier burdens, and that we are also helping to relieve him of the enormous mud tax, caused by poor roads.—LAW.

SITUATION CLEARER.

The Business Outlook as Viewed by R. G. Dunn & Co.

GETTING OVER THE ELECTION

Payments Through the Clearing Houses Are By Far the Largest Ever Known—Exports for the Week.

FAILURES FOR THE PAST WEEK

NEW YORK, November, 19.—R. G. Dunn & Co's Weekly Review of Trade says today:

The situation is clearer and the improvement in business which was expected after the election has begun. Payments through clearing houses are by far the largest ever known, for the week 37.3 per cent. larger than last year and 33 per cent larger than in 1892. The glass workers have resumed, the anthracite coal output is heavy and much beyond the present capacity of markets, the troubles in Illinois coal mines have been settled and the new strike of shoe workers in Marlborough Mass., is now the only labor hindrance of consequence.

It is noteworthy that in spite of all changes the price of spot wheat has but slightly changed. The exports for the week, flour included, have been 3,968,768 bushels from Atlantic ports against 3,237,344 last year, and from Pacific ports 988,083 bushels against 2,191,334 last year, making in all for two weeks of November, 9,312,331 bushels against 9,939,804 last year. Such returns leave wide room for conjecture as to the influences governoring the price, but with 10,337,311 bushels received at western points during the week, and in two weeks 20,261,326 bushels against 15,228,167 last year, it can no longer be said that western supplies threaten to run short.

Corn exports all exceed last year's, amounting for the week to 2,992,720 bushels against 2,722,457 last year, and for two weeks of November have been 5,059,051 against 7,191,098 last year. Such shipments after the middle of November go far to warrant the belief that the foreign demand for this grain is destined to be greater than has been expected.

Were it possible, it would be gratifying to say that a little stronger demand for cotton, making the price 5.37 cents, against 5.31 a week ago, had a solid basis, but southern markets recognize the fact that the closing of many mill here and abroad, owing to excessive stocks of goods on hand, does not offer bright promise. Crop prospects appear so good that, even at the extreme low prices quoted, there is little encouragement for advance in view of the heavy stocks held here and abroad. Under the arrangements between the mills, several have stopped, while others have started this week, and the production of goods has not materially changed. A break in bleached goods breaks previous records, but in general the demand improves.

The woolen manufacturers have gained in orders for the coming season which justifies the heavy buying of materials recently seen, and there are several orders for speedy delivery, but the demand is large, and much machinery is still waiting idly. While sales of wool at the three chief markets were heavy (28,234,500 pounds in three weeks against 20,865,902 last year, and 17,103,100 in 1892), they include two large sales for export, covering 3,000,000 pounds of Montevideo and Australian wool at 16 and 18 cents respectively, which make clearer the fact that prices asked by holders here are relatively high. Some concessions at Philadelphia follow those at Boston, though the market is no the whole steady.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong, I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at F. Potts Green's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

PERMANENT SOCIETY.

Governor's Troop Will Preserve the Memory of the Organization.

At a meeting of the Governor's Troop of the Pennsylvania Cavalry squadron, at Harrisburg Thursday, an organization was formed entitled, "The Society of the Governor's Troop, Pennsylvania Cavalry, United States Volunteers of 1898." The object is to perpetuate the memory of the services of the organization in the Spanish war.

The membership will be limited to the officers and enlisted men of the troop who served during the war with Spain and who received honorable discharges from the United States volunteer army.

Following are the officers of the society who will serve until the first of January, 1900: President, Trooper C. S. Post, of Scranton; vice president, Trooper Arthur Devaull, of Carlisle; secretary, Corporal J. Heron Crossman, Jr., of Harrisburg; treasurer, Trooper Alfred J. Feight, of New Cumberland; historian, Trooper W. S. Youngman, of Williamsport; executive committee, Capt. F. M. Ott, of Harrisburg, Trooper Willard Young, of Hazleton, Trooper David McM. Gregg, of Reading, Trumpeter George W. Bell, of Gettysburg, and Trooper Harry Smith, of Harrisburg.

This is probably the first society of the kind formed from troops operating in the Spanish war, though steps have been taken to organize one or two others more general in character. From a social standpoint and as a medium through which a complete history of service may be formulated and preserved the organization of this society will provide much pleasure for and be useful to its members.

The Governor's Troop has not yet been mustered out of service, on account of the papers not yet being ready for that purpose.

Will Locate in Cuba.

Kansas will furnish the first colony of immigrants to settle in Cuba from the United States. John T. Teny, a colored Baptist preacher, has arranged to make a settlement of colored people near Santiago and expects to start from Topeka with about thirty families in twenty or thirty days. For several years it has been a cherished dream of Mr. Teny to commence a settlement of his race in some Southern climate. Since the war has closed he has turned his attention towards Cuba and has concluded that there are best inducements for his project in that country. He has been in the region and understands it. His idea is to establish a town on the highlands above Santiago, which he will call Topeka.

Victoria Likes American Girls.

It appears that Her Majesty recently expressed her views on the marriage of members of the English aristocracy with American girls. She confessed that she at first viewed these marriages with some anxiety; but added her fears have since been completely allayed and the Queen now thinks that American girls, from the breadth of their education, independency and rapid-changing life, are better able to adapt themselves to a new environment than the more stereotyped girls.

The Queen also thinks it unfair to insinuate the mercenary motives are the frequent cause of the marriages of impoverished nobles to American heiresses.

IT RAINED VICTIMS!

Eleven Men Killed by Penn'a Railroad Passenger Train.

FOUR OTHER MEN WERE INJURED

Locomotive Hurled Mangled Forms High In the Air—Track Gang Ran Down by Train Which Was Making Up Lost Time.

ENGINEER DRENCHED IN BLOOD

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—In the gloom of smoke, storm and fog that darkened the rails of the Pennsylvania railroad early yesterday morning, between Jersey City and Harrison, a belated suburban train dashed into a gang of workmen, killing 11 and injuring four. Five others had remarkable escapes. All the victims lived in Jersey City.

The accident happened about two and a half miles west of Jersey City, just beyond the Hackensack river bridge. At that point there are four tracks, two devoted to passenger and two to freight traffic. At the north are the shops and tracks of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad.

Foreman Quick took out a gang of nineteen men at 8:00 a. m. to repair track No. 4—the westbound freight track—at that place. Quick saw that the fog might mean danger, so he sent ahead two men, Lawless and Doherty, to give warning of approaching trains. Lawless was to go west and Doherty east and cover all the tracks. They were to shout warnings at the approach of trains.

The passenges tracks were kept busy with incoming suburban trains and the smoke and steam from these trains helped to make the atmosphere more dense.

Suddenly, about 8:30, there was a shout from Lawless, who was the advance guard of the gang. "Train No. 3," he cried. It was an eastbound freight train that came along slowly, leaving behind it a heavy pall of smoke. The men who were scattered along the tracks jumped out of the way. Almost all of them jumped over to track No. 1, the eastbound passenger track. The heavy smoke enveloped them and the men, many of them new hands on the road, shivered with fright, for they could not see and could scarcely hear the approaching trains that followed the freight.

Lawless, too, had jumped across to track No. 1, keeping all the time a sharp lookout. Suddenly there was a rumble of wheels and the shriek of a whistle. The Millstone local, delayed by fog, was coming along at the rate of 40 miles an hour. Lawless was struck and thrown 30 feet away, mangled and bleeding. On went the train. Engineer Van Nostrand had scarcely noticed the man's body flying through the air when the engine struck Doherty, then it ploughed into the mass of cowering men, who stood huddled together on the track.

"It was an awful sight," said the engineer later. There was a mass of legs and arms and heads flying through the air. I was drenched with blood. I knew that something terrible had happened and put on the airbrakes as hard as possible.

When the train came to a standstill the passengers rushed out. The track was drenched in blood. The meadows and the track looked like a battlefield covered with bodies. The shrieks of the dying drowned the cries of the horrified passengers. Women fainted and men turned away in horror. Of the 19 men nine were dead and six wounded.

Some one telephoned quickly to Jersey City. Many of the bodies still writhing in mortal agony were placed on the train and borne to the city. Two of the wounded died on the way. A relief train brought back the others.

Church Dedication.

The new Fairview Christian Union house of worship 3 miles north of Curtins, will be dedicated on Sunday, Dec. 4th, 1898. Services to begin at 10:30 o'clock, a. m., Rev. J. Zeigler, of Messiah's church and Rev. B. F. Hummel of the U. B. church will officiate, services morning and evening. Everybody is invited to attend, and give a helping hand.

COMMITTEE.

"My Life Despaired of."

These are words of Mrs. Wm. Burton, of Dartmore, Ont., after doctors had prescribed and she had taken every known heart remedy. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart gave relief in almost shorter time than it takes to tell it—it worked a wonderful Cure in a case of long standing and to-day she says: "I am a well woman." Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart has no case recorded against it where it did not give relief inside of 30 minutes.—56.

The Wonderful Kinetoscope.

The Undine fire company are arranging for a grand entertainment to be given in the Garman opera house, Thursday evening, December 1st. It will be the wonderful War-Graph as exhibited by the Edison Kinetoscope and Phonograph entertainment company. Scenes from the late Spanish war will be given in all their reality. Men are seen struggling for their lives while the American flag floats proudly over them on the smokey battlefield. You would imagine yourself on the battlefield. Between the pictures the audience is entertained by Mr. Edison's very latest Concert-size Phonograph with his up-to-the-minute improvements, which can be distinctly heard in every part of the largest auditorium.

The proceeds of this entertainment are to go towards paying for the new fire alarm bell to be placed in the tower of the new Undine building in memory of the late Frank Taylor. The home talent entertainment given several weeks ago was for the same purpose and about $87.00 was raised. The bell will cost about $150.00 so it is neccessary to raise some more money. This is a worthy object as the bell will be a great benefit to the town. And now a word about the bell. It is to work automatically. Wires will be connected from it to both telephone exchanges and all the operators have to do when an alarm is turned in, will be to press a button and the bell will ring for 15 or 20 minutes, thus alarming the town.

The prices of admission for this performance will be, 20 cents; reserved seats 30 cents and children 10 cents.

Will Reorganize.

On Monday Captain Hugh Taylor, late captain of Co B, of Pennsylvania Volunteers, received official orders; from Adjtuant General Stewart, to begin immediately to reorganize his company, and re-enter the State Guards.

Captain Taylor, although one of the most prominent business men in the town takes great pride and delight in military doings, and when he sets his mind to do anything it is always done, and in the proper manner.

He says his company will be composed of the old guards, and of the men in and around Bellefonte, and we are quite confident that this new company will carry off the honors in drilling the same as it did at Camp Hastings and Camp Thomas.

Harry W. Flack of Spring twp., and Annie Keife of Bellefonte.

OUR TOWN COUNCIL.

Matters of Importance Discussed by That August Body.

Council was called to order at 7:30 with President Keller in the chair. The following members were present: Messrs. Gerberich, Lowery, Houser, Garrity, Shelfer, Wetzel and Tripple.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Clerk Isaac Mitchell and there being no corrections they stood approved.

Verbal communications were called for and J. C. Meyer, Esq., Samuel Sheffer, Claude Cook and W. B. Rankin, all residents of Curtin street, requested council to compel all property owners on that street who have not already done so to put their pavements down to grade. Joseph Brothers & Co. have cut their walk down to grade and it leaves a dangerous place there. There is a descent of three feet from pavement in front of Blanchard lot to Joseph's, and several people have fallen over it. It is dangerous to life and limb and should be remedied.

A request for a new crossing on Bishop street was received signed by many citizens.

Chairman Lowery reported extensive repairs being made on High street.

Chairman Gerberich, of Water committee, reported repairing leaks in water pipes and placing several new fire plugs in different parts of the town. No. 2 boiler at water works has been inspected and repaired and pronounced in good order. A new brick pavement is being laid in front of the water works. Everything in good working order.

The Fire and Police committee had nothing to report.

Market committee reported collecting $1.80 market fees and closing of market for the season.

There was no report from any of the other committees, and this brought the council to old business. The cow question was then again taken up and Clerk Mitchell read the amendment prepared by Solicitor Dale to the cow ordinance. It was found that this did not take in the hogs. Mr. Gerberich moved that Mr. Dale be instructed to draw up an ordinance preventing cows, steers and other horned cattle, swine and horses from running at large, and to provide for electing a pound master to carry out the provisions of said ordinance.

The request of the citizens of Curtin street was referred to the Street committee, with instructions to enforce the ordinance and with full power to act. Temporary repairs will be made at once.

The matter of a crossing on High street, near Court House, was referred to Street committee with power.

Council is discussing a movement to buy an electric dynamo and light our streets. The dynamo is to be run by the engine at the water works. The committee appointed to investigate reported progress.

The following bills were approved and orders drawn:

Thos Shaughensey, mark't cl'k	1 00

All He Craved.

The proprietor of the restaurant had just issued a new advertisement, intended to call attention to a reduction in rates. After quoting the prices of various articles to conclusively demonstrate the fact that everything was cheap, he added at the bottom of the advertisement: "Bread butter and potatoes free."

He knows better now. If he had to do it over again he would word it a little differently, and all because a solemn looking man came in one day, and after taking his place at the table, pointed to the advertisement, and asked:

"Is that on the square?"

"Certainly," replied the waiter.

"Then give me some bread, butter and potatoes," said the man.

"Yes, sir. What else?" asked the waiter.

"Nothing else," replied the man. "That's all that's free, isn't it?"

Two Lucky Hunters.

On Monday Mr. W. S. Lang, of Pittsburg, and Mr. Edwin B. Bailey, of Buffalo, N. Y., two young travelingmen, arrived in Bellefonte and registered at the Brockerhoff House. They thought to pass away the time they would go out into our mountains for a few hours' hunting. They got up as far as Black Hawk, a noted hunting place, and there they come in contact with a flock of wild turkeys. Mr. Lang shot one that weighed 18 pounds, and Mr. Bailey brought down one that weighed 14 pounds.

Thanksgiving Day Postoffice Hours.

The office will be closed except from 9 to 11 a. m., and from 4 to 5.30 p. m. During these hours the carriers will wait on the carriers' window.

No collection or delivery will be made except that of the early morning.

Altoona Beats Bellefonte.

The Altoona High school foot ball team defeated the strong eleven of Bellefonte academy at Waverley field Saturday afternoon, by a score of 6 to 0, says the Altoona Tribune. The grounds were in a slimy, slippery condition from the recent rains; but despite this fact a good exhibition of foot ball was given. About 500 persons saw the game.

The High school boys demonstrated their excellent condition in the game. Securing the ball after the kick-off, they pushed up the field, and five minutes after play began "Andy" Farabaugh was pushed over the line for a touchdown. L. Farabaugh kicked a pretty goal. The Bellefonte boys took a brace after this and prevented further scoring during the game.

Following is the line-up:

ALTOONA.		BELLEFONTE.
L. Farabaugh	right end	Palmer
Tippery	right tackle	Sellers
Lingafelter	right guard	Van Tassel
Seedenburg	centre	Garbrick

Pownall	left guard	Twitmire
Harnish (capt).	quarter-back	Hughes
A. Farrabaugh	right half-back	Henderson
Wehrle	left half-back	Cummings
Faries	full-back	Potter

Touchdowns—A. Farabaugh 1. Goal—L. Farabaugh.

Referee—G. T. Bush, Swathmore. Umpire—J. S. Fair. Timekeeper—E. Strayer.

Time of game—20 minute halves.

This victory gives the Altoona High school team the scholastic championship of central and northeastern Pennsylvania.

BIG GAMES SATURDAY.

Following are the scores of the principal big games elsewhere on Saturday:

Haverford 12; Swathmore 0.

Lafayette 6, Bucknell 0.

Bellefonte 10, Philipsburg 6.

The Bellefonte High school defeated the Philipsburg High school Saturday afternoon in an exciting game of foot ball at Meadowbrook Park by the score of 10 to 6. The game was closely contested from start to finish and some brilliant playing was witnessed on both sides. For Bellefonte, Thomas, Taylor and Rumbarger carried off the honors, and Simler and McCausland for Philipsburg. About 500 people witnessed the game.

The line-up was as follows:

PHILIPSBURG. 6.		BELLEFONTE. 10.
Schoonover	left end	Kline

Umpire—Gilmore. Referee—Jackson.

Time of halves—15 minutes.

Another Snake Tale.

While out on a hunt with a companion in the Seven mountains, 20 miles east of Bellefonte, George Walls had a hair raising experience with snakes. The ground caved under his feet, and he fell into a den, about 12 feet square, in which were four huge balls of reptiles. Each round mass was about two feet in diameter, and contained hundreds of snakes, of all sizes and many kinds. They were partly dormant, and while they swung their heads about, hissed and writhed, they did not uncoil or attack him.

On the floor of the cave a few stray snakes crawled about, but Walls got out of the way and shirked for help. It was nearly half an hour before his companion found him and hauled him out. When Walls was dragged to the surface he fainted. He was so anxious to get home that no attack was made on the snakes.

While there is Life There is Hope.

I was afflicted with catarrh; could neither taste nor smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it.—Marcus G. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

The Balm reached me safely and the effect is surprising. My son says the first application gave decided relief. Respectfully, Mrs. Franklin Freeman, Dover, N. H.

A 10c, trial size or the 50c. size of Ely's Cream Balm will be mailed. Kept by druggists: Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

It Was Her 57th Birthday.

Mrs. Lucy Ann Cox, of East Logan St., widow of the late Augustus Cox, was 57 years old Wednesday. In honor of this important event in the ladies life a surprise party was arranged for her by her daughter Mrs. Charles W. Koontz. It was held at noon at her comfortable home and about thirty-five guests were present. An elaborate dinner was served to all present, and a jolly good time was had. Mrs. Cox was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents.

Only relatives were invited and among the families represented were those of William Derstine, Jesse Cox, George L. Marshall and Charles W. Koontz. All present passed a most enjoyable time and will always look back with pleasure to the 57th birthday of Mrs. Lucy Ann Cox.

Handsome Pool and Billiard Room.

The pool and billiard room of John Anderson, in the McClain block, has been completely overhauled and it is now one of the handsomest rooms in the town. The room has been re-papered and painted and the pool and billiard tables have been cleaned and repaired in the latest up-to-date style. Mr. Anderson is one of our most progressive business men and believes in having everything about him of the very best. The work was done by Messrs. Edward Eckenroth and Robert Montgomery and reflects great credit on their workmanship.

A GREAT FOOT BALL GAME.

That to be Played Thanksgiving Day Between Academy and Lock Haven.

To-day the people of Bellefonte will have a chance to see a fine article of foot ball as put up by the Lock Haven and Academy elevens. The former team is captained and by an ex-Lafayette man, Ralph McCormick and his team, the pick of this city, is necessarily a strong one. Our Academy boys have lost but one game this year and that on Altoona's muddy grounds against a strong team by a little hard footing in the first five minutes of the game. But the boys will redeem that defeat by playing the game of their lives to-day. Remember it is a nervy thing for the Academy to play Lock Haven's best stuff and the town should stir up their local pride and turn out en masse to see an exciting game and encourage the home boys to victory. Be sure and take your 25cts along with you. Expenses are heavy. Game will be called at 2:30.

Hunting Over the Mountain.

The Centre Hall Reporter, in an article on the hunting season which is now on, says in reference to the sport in that section:

Some wild turkeys have been killed and according to reports these birds are scarce, and many a gobular will be stilled before the season is ended, and Thanksgiving will yearn for the game.

Rabbits were never so numerous, and sportsmen never return without good luck.

Pheasants are not scarce, and the expert wing shot always bags a few.

Squirrels have been plenty, and other smaller game can always be found.

The weather has been unusually fine for hunting and camping out.

Referring to deer, the Reporter says these, of course, are no longer plenty, too much hunting in the last 25 years having thinned out this noble fleet footed animal, that once was so numerous that the early settler could kill one or two any time before breakfast. Now hunting parties are often out an entire week without even seeing a deer, and a party fortunate enough to kill one or two think they have done a big thing. Last week there were a half dozen hunting parties numbering 41 men, in the Slate Ridge section, hunting for deer and only one deer killed, although several were seen.

Death of William Haberacker

We are sorry to chronicle the death of William Haberacker, one of Milesburg's old and highly respected citizens which occured at his home in that place about 5 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, Nov., 22nd. Death came very suddenly and was due to dropsy and heart trouble. He had been a sufferer since last February but after a severe spell of illness he would again rally and his family would hope for renewed health and strength. During his last illness he suffered intensely, the pain being so great that he could not sit but kept walking almost constantly.

The deceased was born in Reading and was aged 77 years. In early life he was a traveling salesman. After his marriage to Miss Martha Lipton, of Milesburg, he settled in that town and has made it his home ever since. A wife and two children survive the loss of a kind and loving father. The children are Mrs. Wm. K. Marshall, of Falls Creek, Pa., and Mrs. John T. Laurie, of Bellefonte Pa.

Mr. Haberacker during the dark days of the rebellion was one of his countries first defenders and served with credit and fidelity through the war. He was a member of the George I. Potter Post, of Milesburg, which post will have charge of the funeral.

The funeral will take place from the house Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment at Milesburg.
